LINDBERGH QUITS AIR CORPS

NEW YORK, April 28 (INS)—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh today resigned his commission as colonel in the U. S. Army Air Corps Reserve because of the remarks made by President Roosevelt concerning the famous flier's loyalty at his press conference last Friday.

Lindbergh's decision to sever his official connection with the air corps reserve was made known in a formal letter to the President.

The letter follows:

"My Dear Mr. President:

"Your remarks at the White House press conference on April 25, involving my reserve commission in the United States Army Air Corps, have of course disturbed me greatly.

"I had hoped that I might exercise my right, as an American citizen, to place my viewpoint before the people of my country in time of peace, without giving up the privilege of serving my country as an air corps officer in the event of war.

"But since you, in your capacity as President of the United States and commander-in-chief of the Army, have clearly implied that I am no longer of use to this country as a reserve officer, and in view of other implications that you, my President and my superior officer, have made concerning my loyalty to my country, my character, and my motives I can see no honorable alternative to tendering my resignation as colonel in the United States Army Air Corps Reserve.

"I am, therefore, forwarding my resignation to the Secretary of War.

"I take this action with the utmost regret, for my relationship with the Air Corps is one of the things that has meant most to me in life.

"I place it second only to my right as a citizen to speak freely to my fellow country men, and to discuss with them the issues of war and peace which confront our nation in this crisis.

"I will continue to serve my country to the best of my ability as a private citizen.

Respectfully,
CHARLES A. LINDBERGH.

The commission as colonel which Lindbergh gave up today was awarded him 14 years ago while he rode the crest of public acclaim for his non-stop flight from New York to Paris.

Other honors bestowed upon him at the time included the Distinguished Flying Cross and the Congressional Medal of Honor of the United States, the French Cross of the Legion of Honor and the British Royal Air Force Cross. He also was awarded the Woodrow Wilson Medal following a good-will tour of Mexico, central and northern South America and the West Indies.

'Lone Eagle' Writes President Roosevelt He's Resigning Commission

F. D. LIKENED LINDBERGH TO 'COPPERHEAD'

WASHINGTON, April 28 (AP)—President Roosevelt, at his press conference last Friday, asserted that it was dumb to consider a Nazi victory inevitable and said Col. Charles A. Lindbergh should be compared to a famous Copperhead in the Civil War—Clement L. Vallandingham—described by the President as an appeaser of that day and age.

Col. Lindbergh's name was brought into the discussion when a reporter asked why the flier had not been called into active service, although he held a commission in the air corps reserve.

Replying, Mr. Roosevelt said that during the Civil War numerous foreigners, liberty-loving people, fought on both sides, and that at the same time both sides let certain people go; that is, did not call them into service.

He said the people who were thus ignored were the Vallandighams. He explained that the Vallandighams were people who, from 1863 on, urged immediate peace, arguing that the North could not win the war between the States.

(Clement L. Vallandigham was a member of the House from Ohio. In 1863 he was arrested for alleged "treasonable utterances" and banished to the Confederate States. He was known as a leader of the "Copperheads."—Editor's note.)

American Day Group Named

NEW YORK, April 28—Appointment of an arrangements committee composed of 1200 leading citizens has been announced by Mayor LaGuardia for I Am An American Day, to be celebrated on Central Park mall Sunday afternoon, May 18.

"I have designated this large committee of leading citizens from all walks of life and all fields of activity," Mayor LaGuardia said, "in order that the I Am An American Day rally may truly reflect the patriotism and Americanism inherent in New York city's 7,000,000 population."

Lindbergh's Letter Has Not Reached President

WASHINGTON, April 28 (AP)—The White House had no comment today on Charles A. Lindbergh's resignation as a colonel in the Air Corps Reserve.

Stephen T. Early, presidential secretary, said that a letter from Lindbergh to President Roosevelt, announcing the resignation, had not yet been received at the White House.

Army officials also declined comment except to say that it was the War Department's general policy not to accept resignations from reserve officers during the emergency period.

It was pointed out, however, that no regulations covered the point and the question of accepting or rejection of the flier's resignation was entirely optional with the Secretary of War.

NAZIS BLAST RETREATING BRITISH

By the Associated Press

Hitler's blitzkrieg armies, striking deep into the Grecian Peloponnesus in pursuit of British troops en route to "escape" ports, were reported today to be preparing for a new campaign in the eastern Mediterranean.

Three major objectives in the Nazi "drang nach Osten"—march to the East, might include:

A thrust into Turkey, possibly with Turkish consent, to reach the rich oil fields of Iran and Iraq.

An attack on the Suez Canal.

An invasion of Russian Ukraine, once known as Europe's breadbasket because of its vast wheatfields.

Nazi quarters in Berlin gave no hint of the direction, declaring merely that the Greek campaign was just a phase of a "larger plan" which was unfolding.

SEE UKRAINE NEXT

Diplomatic circles in Vichy, France, declared last nightt that Germany's next move would be into the Ukraine, basing their prediction on unconfirmed reports that Soviett army troops were being shifted from Siberia toward Russia's western frontiers.

It was recalled, too, that Hitler once spoke longingly of the Ukrainian granaries.

A military spokesman in Berlin, reviewing the Nazi sweep into lower Greece, said German parachute troops captured 900 British soldiers in seizing the Isthmus of Corinth before yesterday's entry into Athens.

The spokesman declared that British shipping losses in the withdrawal from Greece had already surpassed the wreckage at Dun-

Big Canadian Force Safe in British Port

A BRITISH PORT, April 28 (AP)—The largest single contingent of Canadian-trained fliers to reach the United Kingdom since inauguration of the Empire air training program arrived here safely Sunday in company with thousands of Canadian fighting men.

The commanding officer of the central station to which the airmen, including Americans, Canadians, Australians and New Zealanders, were sent before being posted to fighting units said their standard of training was so high they would need only a little brushing up before taking the air for battle.

Soldiers and pilots, singing and cheering as they streamed ashore from transports, said they had a "quiet and dull" crossing and that not a single submarine or hostile airplane was sighted during the entire voyage.

British authorities said the successful convoy job by the navy was merely another in the series in which not a single life has been lost by enemy action.

The number of Canadian soldiers in England has not been disclosed but military observers estimated the number at about 50,000 before the arrival of the latest contingents.

The airmen included officer pilots, gunners, ground crews, observers, wireless operators and others.

Americans in the group were said to have volunteered for air transport and auxiliary duties.

The soldiers included artillerymen, engineers and reinforcements for Canadian units already in the United Kingdom.

Among those from the United States were P. Clark, former Californian who fought in Spain and China; Flying Officer Beaumont of Missouri, a former commercial pilot; Leland C. Lloyd of Texas and Raymond Allen of Oklahoma, a former flying instructor, according to International News Service.

The convoy also brought Sergt. Andy Miller, former Canadian amateur heavyweight champion and now an aerial gunner, and Pilot Officer Bobby Keffer, star Canadian football player.

Potatoes Put On Rationed List In Netherlands

AMSTERDAM, The Netherlands (via Berlin), April 28 (AP)—Potatoes are being rationed in the Netherlands for the first time, the allowance being approximately three pounds a person a week.

The restriction ranks as the severest measure yet taken in food rationing in The Netherlands.

At the same time the bread allowance was increased to 4.4 pounds every six days instead of for a whole week.

In measures taken 10 days ago milk was rationed for the first time and the butter and meat rations were reduced.

WEATHER

Official U. S. Weather Bureau Forecast

LOCAL—Fair tonight and Tuesday, cooler tonight. Gentle northerly winds tonight becoming moderate easterly on Tuesday. Lowest temperature tonight about 40 degrees, slightly lower in the suburbs.

CONNECTICUT AND RHODE ISLAND—Fair tonight and Tuesday, cooler tonight with light frost in the interior.

MAINE, NEW HAMPSHIRE—Fair tonight and Tuesday, cooler tonight with light frosts in south and heavy frosts in north portions.

VERMONT—Fair tonight and Tuesday, cooler tonight with heavy frost.

GENERAL CONDITIONS

The coast storm retreated off the New England coast during the night. A band of rainfall extending about 25 miles inland persisted from Nantucket to eastern Maine. It became warmer during the night, for the air flow had been completely around the storm, and air reaching this locality from the north had its origin far to the south over the Atlantic. Just west of New England, it was considerably cooler under a region of relatively high pressure and clear skies. This high pressure crested over the western Great Lakes region and dominated weather conditions over the remainder of the East.

Fire-Trapped Couple On High Ledge Saved

Screaming for help when flames trapped them on a narrow building ledge, a Roxbury man and wife were rescued from their burning home today by police officers who backed a station wagon over the sidewalk and dragged the couple to the top of the vehicle.

The dramatic rescue was staged just as firemen were arriving at the two-alarm blaze, which swept a three-story tenement structure in Tremont st., near Linden Park st., Roxbury Crossing.

A total of 13 persons lost their possessions as flames spread rapidly from basement to roof. Four occupants, including an aged man and his wife, were carried to safety down ladders from the top floor.

In response to the first alarm, Patrolmen Daniel A. Phillips and John Todd of the Roxbury Crossing station reached the scene shortly before the fire apparatus and discovered Mr. and Mrs. James Cook stranded on a second-story building ledge. Flames were billowing from windows at either side.

The officers backed their wagon over the sidewalk, climbed to the top, then by means of a stepladder which they carried as part of their equipment were able to save the pair.

Hot-air explosions, which hurled glass and burning fragments half way across Tremont st., endangered firemen and victims alike as Charles Trask, 70; Effie Trask, 66, Frank Dunn, 56, and Frank Sullivan, 22, were saved over ladders from the third floor.

Also driven out were Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Bernaquer and their two sons, Ralph, Jr., 4, and Richard, 3; Maurice Dwyer, 46; David Dwyer, 16, and Michael Buckley, 51.

All apartments in the building were destroyed as the flames swept through partitions and gave firemen a stubborn battle. At intervals, the fire burst through the roof and showered the neighborhood with sparks.

In addition to the dwellings, a food store, second-hand shop and unoccupied store on the first floor were damaged. Loss was estimated at $8000.

At an earlier fire, in South Boston, a father and two small daughters, all overcome by smoke, were rescued by firemen. They were Cornelius Murphy, 40, and his daughters, Edith, 1, and Maureen, 2.

ONE DRAGGED TO DEATH AS CAR HITS AGED PAIR

A tragic drama of death on the road, Everett officers today related how a motorist, after accidentally running down an elderly couple, drove on some distance unaware that one victim was caught under his machine.

William S. McMahon of Spruce st., Malden, well-known in the Boston market district, was taken lifeless from under the car by several spectators who had to lift the front of the machine.

On the danger list at Whidden Memorial Hospital was Mrs. McMahon, who sustained a fractured leg and internal injuries.

The accident, which occurred in front of their daughter's home on Broadway, Everett, came while the couple, arm in arm, were crossing the street to reach a bus stop en route home after a happy outing.

The car, officers said, was operated by Chester Niebryzdowski of Boston st., Lynn, who was quoted by officers as saying that he realized he had struck someone but because traffic was so heavy he felt he had to get his car out of the path of traffic.

For that reason, he told officers, it was necessary that he travel some distance, although he did not realize that McMahon's body was trapped under the car.

The couple, according to the motorist, had come from behind a bus traveling in the opposite direction to his car.

Only a few minutes before, Mr. and Mrs. McMahon had said "goodnight" to their daughter, Mrs. Gertrude Tumelty, who watched them for a moment at her front doorstep as they started to cross the street. McMahon, who leaves five other children, retired several years ago after working for many years in the Boston market district.

CHILD'S CUSTODY WON BY TRIANGLE MOTHER

Despite her convictions in two courts on the same morals charges, Judge John V. Mahoney, in Probate Court today, refused to take custody of her eight-year-old daughter away from Mrs. Ruth Tannenbaum, 32, of Georgia st., Roxbury.

Custody of the girl had been sought by the father, Hyman Tannenbaum, an Allston cleaning contractor, on the ground that the divorced mother was an unfit person.

In combating his suit, Mrs. Tannenbaum sought to have him adjudged in contempt of court for allegedly being $225 in arrears in ordered alimony.

Judge Mahoney dismissed the contempt action on the ground of insufficient evidence, but he supported the mother in her contention that she should be allowed to keep the girl.

COURT OUTLINES STAND

"Here," said Judge Mahoney, "we have a case of a mother who is divorced for the second time and a grandmother who is also divorced. I don't want counsel to understand that I condemn divorce. Divorce is a right given parties by law.

"This woman has been found guilty and adjudged a person who violated the law on a morals offense.

"But standing out very prominently in this case is the fact that this conviction has not affected her care for the child.

"I find that this conviction does not jeopardize the happiness and future of the child. I can see no improvement in the happiness of the child at this time in giving custody to a third party."

MOTHER WARNED

Tannenbaum himself, the judge said then, has no adequate provision to take care of the girl, and he went on:

"I warn the mother that if there is any condition at any time where it appears that she is not a proper person, I shall take the child from her. I am putting the mother on her own."

Mrs. Tannenbaum, who still insists that she is innocent in the whole affair, was found guilty on morals charges involving Frank Brown, 45, of Lawrence ave., Roxbury, former official of the Training Corporation of America, Inc., Beacon st., Back Bay.

She contended she was Brown's housekeeper and was not living with him as man and wife.

In superior court last Friday she was placed on probation, but Brown was given a month's sentence on two charges.

Hiker Wins Death Mistrial

NEW YORK, April 28 (INS)—A mistrial because of a newspaper story was ordered today in the murder trial of George Joseph Cvek, Harrisburg, Va., hitch hiker charged with the slaying of Mrs. Catherine Pappas.

The story which appeared in a morning paper yesterday allegedly prejudiced Cvek's case, his counsel claimed, and the district attorney's office agreed.

Trial had been under way for two weeks, but the jury had not been locked up. A new jury will be empaneled within the next two weeks to begin action anew.

$19,400,000 HUB HIGHWAY CALLED VITAL

A bill for construction of a $19,400,000 super highway system for express motor traffic through Boston drew a crowd of more than 250 persons in Gardner Auditorium at the State House today.

Constitutionality of the proposed project—chief feature of which would be construction of overhead and surface highways running through the city to link main arteries to the north and south—was immediately challenged at the hearings before the legislative committee on cities.

PROTEST OVERULED

Frank L. Kane, former associate State Commissioner of Public Works, maintained that the committee had "no bill" before it on the ground that it constituted appropriation legislation and, as such, should have originated in the House.

Sen. Harold U. Lundgren of Worcester, committee chairman, ruled, however, that such a protest had been anticipated and that the measure was properly before the committee.

Under the bill, the project would be financed over a 20-year period by State funds raised by the gasoline tax. Construction and expenditures would be directed by a third-member authority, two members of which would be appointed by the governor and the third by the mayor of Boston.

Labeling Boston's transportation problem as the "worst traffic bottleneck in the state," Robert Cutler, Boston's corporation counsel, said the project would benefit motorists and commercial interests throughout the state and that it was not designed for the city of Boston alone.

GUARD AGAINST GRAFT

He said that quick motor transport access to and across Boston was essential to effective functioning to the Army Base in South Boston, supplies for Fort Devens and Camp Edwards, to the Charlestown Navy Yard, now enploying 5,000 persons and to the Navy dock, largest in North America.

Boston, he said, serves as the ocean gateway to the whole state and substantially all marine traffice for Massachusetts is landed at Boston wharves and trans-shipped by rail and motor trucks to the State's cities and towns.

Cutler told the committee that provisions had been inserted in the measure to guard against land speculation and corruption.

Cape Camp Sergeant Kills Self

CAMP EDWARDS, Falmouth, April 28—Supply Sergt. Forrest N. Gelinas, 31, of Marjorie st., Orange, was found dying in his bunk in the supply house today with a bullet wound in his head, apparently, camp authorities said, "self-inflicted."

A short time after his removal to the post hospital, the sergeant died.

In the official report on the case it was said the wound was inflicted with a .30-calibre rifle bullet.

The sergeant was found unconscious in his bunk by fellow soldiers of Co. F, 181st Inf.

First Lieut. Daniel F. Casey of Webster, medical officer of the regiment, ordered the wounded man removed to the station hospital.

Following the death, Col. Roy W. Smith, Worcester physician now commanding the 181st Inf., appointed a board to investigate.

Assigned to the board were Maj. William L. McBride of Fitchburg, Capt. Joseph L. Kelly of Worcester, and Lieut. Casey. The colonel also designated Lieut.-Col. James T. Powers of Needham to assist the board.

Sergt. Gelinas was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph L. Gelinas of Orange.

5 Skeletons Solve 11-Year Mystery

SPRINGFIELD, April 28—Authorities today marked "finis" to investigation of the city's greatest mystery—a multiple 11-year-old disappearance—with discovery of five skeletons in the rusty wreckage of an automobile taken from Water Shops pond.

Since Dec. 12, 1930, police had sought throughout New England, the United States and even all parts of Canada for trace of the family of David W. Lee, 35, a World War veteran.

The search ended when the battered automobile was hauled from the pond. Besides Lee, the victims of an automobile plunge were his wife, Alice, 35; their daughter, Genella, 8, and their sons, Louis M., 6, and David, Jr., 4.

Still behind the wheel of the car was the skeleton of Lee, and beside him, that of his wife. Partial skeletons of the three children were found in the back seat.

REVEAL DEATH CAR

Solution of one of the State's most baffling disappearance cases came shortly after a party of boaters sighted the top of the sedan about 45 feet from the shore of the pond which was being drained in the vicinity of the Armory preparatory to the erection of a bridge.

The water level had been lowered about 15 feet since Friday, revealing the death car for which police had searched more than five years.

Poring over records of the case, police found that the Lees had left the home of Ernest Oliver, of Melrose st., Springfield about 11 p. m. the night they vanished.

Police officials believe that Lee for some reason failed to make the turn from Eastern ave. into Hickory st., which runs parallel to the pond, and that the car plunged down a six-foot bank, trapping all five.

WEATHER COLD

Lee's home was on Carr st. which is on the opposite side of the pond from Eastern ave.

The weather had been cold, and the ground hard, this accounting for lack of any tire marks which might have given police a clue. The normal depth of the water where the car was found was estimated at about 25 feet.

Lee's real name, according to a brother, was Leonowicz. He had been employed by a match company in Springfield for six years prior to his disappearance. His father, Louis T. Leonowicz, and three brothers were said by police to live in Bridgeport, Ct.

Mrs. Lee was the daughter of Mrs. Alice Covey, of Albany, N. Y.

Anglers Take Notice: Forests Still Closed

Disappointing news to more than 100,000 fishermen, denied access to their favorite lakes and rivers, came today with announcement by State Conservation Commissioner Raymond J. Kenney the fire hazard ban on state forests will remain in effect.

Because last week's rain was not sufficiently widespread, Kenney said there was "little likelihood" of an immediate lifting of the ban.

Reports on fire conditions in every section of the state, compiled by 39 game wardens and 11 fire marshals, were used to determine whether or not the fire menace had passed.

Meanwhile, cloudy and slightly warmer weather was predicted by the weather bureau today, with sunny skies returning again by tomorrow.

Temperatures rose slowly after a frigid week-end that was accompanied by high winds and seas which sent ships scurrying for port and which pounded the seawalls of both the North and South Shores.

Tossed by the mounting seas, the fishing fleet cut short their stay on the banks and beat for port, while all along the coast the storm delayed shipping.

Huge crests rounded the coast and caused damage at Winthrop, Revere and at Quincy. The gale came in gusts and was accompanied by rain through most of the day.

Despite the rain, nearly 100,000 sightseers visited the flame-swept areas along the beaches at Marshfield.

Many of the visitors were persons whose summer homes were destroyed. A large number did not get an opportunity to inspect the damage to their property because police had to keep traffic moving.

The tonic and sandwich stands in Brant Rock did a mid-summer business.

Coal Strike Cripples Defense, Senate Told

WASHINGTON, April 28 (AP)—Edward F. McGrady, special labor consultant to the War Department, told a Senate committee today that if the present stoppage of soft coal mining continues "the entire national defense effort will be in grave jeopardy."

Testifying before the Senate group investigating the progress of national defense, McGrady asserted that closing of the coal mines had sharply reduced the output of steel, ammonia—which an essential element in high explosives—and other vital products.

"I give you the facts of the situation," he said, "facts which are giving the War Department serious concern because they forebode a catastrophic effect upon the industrial mobilization effort."

LIMITING DAMAGE

Saying that the time had passed when the coal dispute could have been settled without damaging the defense program, McGrady added:

"The all-important question today is one of limiting the damage as much as possible, and as quickly as possible, before the entire industrial preparedness drive is completely paralyzed."

At the White House, President Roosevelt asked William H. Davis, vice-chairman of the defense mediation board, to report to him upon conclusion of his testimony before the Senate group. Davis was expected to testify today.

IDLE 27 DAYS

Mines in the Appalachian area have been idle for 27 days, and McGrady said that even if production is resumed a week will be required for the replacement of depleted coal stocks.

The mediation board announced yesterday it had been unable to settle the dispute certified to it several days ago.

Stephen T. Early, presidential press secretary, told reporters that the coal situation was "very serious," but said he was not sure yet whether there had been a complete breakdown of negotiations before the mediation board. Nor would he say what direct action might be taken by the President.

McGrady told the committee that in the case of the steel industry, "at least an additional week will be required to get back in production those blast furnaces which have been closed down as a result of this strike."

Saying that steel was the industry most seriously affected by the coal stoppage, the witness added that 24 blast furnaces have been closed and at least 10 more will be closed by May 1. Steel ingot production already is 15 per cent off, he said, and this figure will be doubled by May 5.

In the transportation field, McGrady said a number of railroads were short of coal, including the Southern railroad which had only a 10-days' supply.

SLASH IN TAX EXEMPTIONS SUGGESTED

WASHINGTON, April 28 (AP)—A proposal that Congress "dig down" to impose income taxes on persons with smaller incomes than are now taxed was given Congress today by M. L. Seidman, chairman of the New York Board of Trade taxation committee.

Seidman, a witness for public interests, suggested to the House ways and means committee that income tax exemptions be $500 for single persons, $1000 for married couples and $250 for each dependant.

Present law allows exemptions of $800 for single persons, $2000 for married couples and $400 for each dependant.

The Treasury, in suggestions for raising $3,600,000,000 in new revenue proposed no change but suggested a new system of surtaxes which would boost the tax payments of all present income taxpayers.

Seidman contended that failure to lower exemptions would permit three-quarters of the national income to "escape" the increased taxation. He deschibed lowering of exemptions as "a bitter pill to swallow politically" and added "the line of least resistance is in additional hidden excise taxes."

Seidman opposed a proposed tax of two cents on each bank check, sugested a revamping of the excess profit tax rate schedule and changes in exemptions for corporations. He urged that even if rates must be raised "Don't let us pretend to tax excess profits when, in fact, we are taxing normal profits."

John V. Lawrence, general manager for the American Trucking Ass'ns, told the committee that increase of the federal gasoline tax by 1 cent to 2½ cents a gallon would possibly curtail use of motor vehicles and reduce revenues.

Earlier Congressional circles heard that the National Ass'n of Manufacturers, representing a big segment of American industry, was ready to indorse the treasury's new revenue goal.

ANTI-UNION FIRING IS BARRED BY HIGH COURT

WASHINGTON, April 28 (AP)—The Supreme Court held today, in a far-reaching decision, that the Wagner Labor Act requires a company to hire and give back pay to a person found by the Labor Board to have been denied work because of union membership or activities.

Justice Frankfurter delivered the decision, giving fresh interpretation to the meaning of the labor legislation.

At issue was a labor board order directing the Phelps Dodge Corp. of New York to employ and give back pay to two men who were found to have been refused work because of union affiliation.

The order applied to the company's copper mine at Bisbee, Ariz., where a strike was begun on June 10, 1935—shortly before the Wagner Act became effective on July 5, 1935.

Denial of employment to the two men constituted discrimination, the labor board found. The company contended it should not be compelled to hire "strangers."

Wheeler Says F. D. Policy Has Poised Nation for War

CHICAGO, April 28 (AP)—Senator Burton K. Wheeler (D.), of Montana, says President Roosevelt's policy "to ignore and to destroy" the nation's neutrality has made America "a non-belligerent poised on the brink of war."

Speaking at a peace rally here, Wheeler said that the President's policy had been "a policy not only to destroy the neutrality of this country, but to promote the destruction of neutrality of the whole of Latin America."

He asserted that there was not "a first class nation in all the world that through the processes of sanity and reason can assume leadership for peace.

"There is not a first class neutral power left on the face of the earth—and this because of the policy of President Roosevelt which has been to ignore and to destroy the neutrality of the United States. There is not one nation that can initiate a movement for the cessation of hostilities to the end that humanity be saved from further suffering and the total annihilation of our magnificent modern civilization."

Wheeler told the audience "you have been softened for a declaration of war," and that "we are rushing down the road to war and to dictatorship—one begets the other.

"Only one final step remains. That will come if the American people accept patrol—accept these convoys in the name of saving peace. And that last final step is shooting, or convoys, or patrols in war zones. It would seem as if our warmongers are hoping that one of our ships be sunk and that American boys be drowned in order to drag us into this European war. Everything has been done and is being done by this Administration to create an incident to excite the American people to war."

The rally at the Chicago Arena was sponsored by the American First Committee.

U. S. Studies Egg Prices in Hub

WASHINGTON, April 28 (AP)—Reduced poultry and egg prices are the goal of a survey of the nation's leading markets being made by the Bureau of Agricultural Economics in co-operation with the Surplus Marketing Administration and the Agricultural Marketing Service.

Cities whose markets are being studied by experts under the direction of W. C. Crow, Bureau of Agricultural Economics specialists, include Boston.

The egg and poultry survey was modelled after a similar study made recently in 40 leading fruit and vegetable markets. This survey, Crow said, resulted in economics in the cost of distribution which have been passed on to consumers.

Vichy Fears Aims Of Free French

VICHY, France, April 28 (AP)—The French government announced today receipt of information that De Gaulist ("Free French") forces, supported by British mechanized units, were massed just inside the southern border of French Somaliland, East Africa.

The announcement said the colonial ministry had given necessary instructions to the governor of the French possession to prevent it from going over to the De Gaullists.

The De Gaullist troops were said to be concentrated at Daouanleh, just within French Somaliland and a station on the railway which runs from Addis Ababa, capital of Ethiopia, to Jibuti, French Somaliland port on the gulf of Aden.

Still other followers of General Charles de Gaulle were said to have disembarked at Zeila, in adjoining British Somaliland.

Soldier Dies Of Car Injuries

CAMP EDWARDS, April 28—Pvt. Joseph Savage, 22, of Hastings st., West Roxbury, died today at Camp Edwards hospital of injuries received last Friday in an automobile accident in which three other soldiers were killed and another critically injured.

The accident occurred in Wareham when the borrowed car in which the soldiers were riding crashed head-on into a tree, hurling the motor across the highway.

The fifth soldier, Pvt. John Joseph Delaney, Jr. remained in critical condition in Tobey Hospital, Wareham.

With Savage when he died were his parents, Atty. and former Rep Charles H. Savage and Mrs. Savage.

British Take Dessye, Last Duce Stronghold

NAIROBI, April 28 (INS)—Capture of Dessye, Italian stronghold about 175 miles northeast of the Ethiopian capital of Addis Ababa, was announced by the British command in Nairobi today.

The important Abyssinian highway junction, one of the last remaining Fascist strongholds in East Africa, has fallen to attacking British forces, it was announced.

Dessye was the last major stronghold of the Italian forces in Ethiopia, who have been constantly driven from their positions under battering of British and native "patriot" troops.

Late last week the Italians offered strong resistance before Dessye, but it proved futile and the city fell after heavy fighting.

War Fails to Halt Nations' Star-Gazers

Astronomy and all its scientific researchers knows no man-made wars.

This was revealed today when Prof. Bart J. Bok of the Harvard Observatory announced that scientists in both Germany and England—engaged in a death struggle at war — nevertheless were exchanging scientific data on stars.

Prof. Bok, who said that research in astronomy was proceeding as usual in all European nations, said that latest discoveries made by scientists of Britain and Germany were exchanged through an international clearing house here.

PORTSMOUTH UNDER HEAVY BOMB ATTACK

LONDON, April 28 (INS)—Causing heavy casualties, German planes sharply attacked a south coast English city during the night and also bombed other parts of the British Isles.

A German announcement said Nazi planes effectively bombed the seaport and naval base of Portsmouth, starting huge fires at military objectives.

Incendiaries and high explosives were dropped on the south coast town and also on a northeast Scottish coastal town. Raiders appeared over two areas of East Anglia but no air raid alarms were sounded in London.

An air ministry communique stated:

"Enemy raids were confined to the early part of last night and were on a small scale. They were mainly directed against a south coast town which was sharply attacked. Some damage and heavy casualties were caused, although the number of fatalities was not large.

"There were other incidents in southeast England and on the northeast coast of Scotland, but no casualties were reported.

"One enemy bomber was shot down during the night."

Australia Affirms Tie With Britain

SYDNEY, Australia, April 28 (INS)—Acting Prime Minister Arthur William Fadden charged today that German propagandists are "untruthfully telling the German and neutral peoples that trouble has arisen between Britain and Australia."

"Australia to a man stands solidly behind Britain in this war, and the Australian people are proud to have been associated with the British and Greek troops in the Balkan sector of the war, even if this military operation has not brought the success we should have liked."

I nhis speech yesterday, British Prime Minister Winston Churchill also charged that German prapagandists were "trying to make bad blood between us and the Australians."

"It cannot be emphasized too strongly," Fadden said, "that Australia is fighting this war as one in the Empire team. To Australians that means we shall pull our full weight until final victory.

"There will be other battles in which Australia's navy, army and air force seek to play a full part alongside our brothers from Britain and the sister dominions."

The controversy arising last week over the use of Australian troops in the Balkan campaign was deprecated by Curtin who said such arguments gave comfort to the Axis and caused speculation in the United States upon whether Australia was pulling out of the war.

BRITONS TOLD NOT TO RELY TOO MUCH ON AID OF AMERICA

LONDON, April 28 (AP)—Writing a tragic "finis" to the Battle of Greece, the British press played up today Prime Minister Churchill's emphasis on United States aid in the battle of the Atlantic, but cautioned against expecting too much comfort from America after the important Balkan setback.

Official quarters declined to amplify the announcement of Australian Army Minister Percy C. Spender in Sydney that Australian troops already had started leaving Greece and there was a tendency here to speak of other things.

The Allied failure in Greece produced less crepe-hanging than the collapse of France last summer, and public attention focussed on the task of keeping supplies coming across the Atlantic.

The Manchester Guardian predicted that "in the future we shall see something like a division of labor between the American and British fleets, but a division of labor that does not break any political pledge."

The Daily Herald called for "the mood of the weeks after Dunkirk —a mood in which, by a united feat of organization, sacrifice and energy, historic miracles were performed."

COMMENTS ON U. S. AID

This newspaper warned against writers and speakers who "still stick to their rose-colored spectacles beaming in the direction of the United States."

The Daily Mail, commented:

"Throughout this war whenever we have suffered a serious reverse, there has been a tendency to turn to the United States for comfort.

"It is a tendency that can retard our own effort . . . the United States is giving us invaluable help. That help cannot for some time to come be decisive."

The vitally important Battle of the Atlantic has entered upon "a far more favorable phase" for Britain because of the United States' decision to patrol the waters of the Western Hemisphere, Churchill declared in his broadcast.

"When I said 10 weeks ago 'Give us the tools and we will finish the job' I meant give them to us, put them within our reach," Churchill asserted, "and that is what it now seems Americans are going to do, and that is why I feel a very strong conviction that though the Battle of the Atlantic will be long and hard, and its issue by no means yet determined, it has entered upon a more grim but at the same time a far more favorable phase."

CONFIDENT OF VICTORY

Although expressing confidence in ultimate victory, the prime minister, in a 30-minute war review, told his listeners:

"We must now expect the war in the Mediterranean, on the sea, in the desert and above all in the air to become very fierce, varied and widespread.

Blackshirts Hold Corfu, Rome Says

ROME, April 28 (AP)—The Italian air force and Blackshirts have occupied the Greek Island of Corfu, off the Greek west coast, the Italian high command announced today.

The war bulletin also announced the occupation of Preveza, port on the Greek west coast, by an armored car battalion of infantry.

The island of Corfu, often a pawn in European wars and the most beautiful of Greek islands, is strategically important as a guardian of the entrance to the Adriatic sea.

About 40 miles long and 20 miles wide at the broadest point, the island lies only two miles from the Albanian coast at its nearest point.

Seventy miles to the west is the "heel" of the Italian boot. In between is the strait of Otranto.

Between the island and the mainland are waters in which large vessels can lie and there are natural bases for warships and submarines. The British were reported to have landed some forces there when they went to the aid of Greece following the Italian invasion of the Balkan kingdom last October.

The island has an area of 275 square miles and a population of about 100,000.

Son of Dean Inge Dies as RAF Flier

LONDON, April 28 (AP)—The death of Pilot Officer the Rev. W. S. Inge, 25, youngest son of the former Dean of St Pauls, Dr. W. R. Inge, was announced today.

An air ministry source said Inge, who entered the RAF as a pilot, was killed "on active service."

Retreating British Race To Escape German Trap

kirk, with 287,000 tons sunk in Greek waters in the past 11 days.

Lloyd's listed British shipping losses at Dunkirk at 72 ships totaling 280,556 tons and allied losses at 39 additional ships aggregating 163,348 tons.

COLONIAL MINISTRY READY

Meanwhile preparations are being made for the creation of a German colonial ministry, an authorized spokesman in Berlin announced today.

"Certainly such preparations under way," he said. "Germany long and consistently has claimed a right to colonies."

Australian Army Minister Percy C. Spender said the withdrawal of British imperial forces by sea was under way, and declared:

"As far as this has proceeded, it has been successful."

Occupied Sunday, Athens was the 14th European capital brought under German domination, by diplomacy or blitzkrieg fury, since the Austrian Anschluss in March, 1938.

Approximately 1,000,000 square miles—an area greater than all of the United States east of the Mississippi—with more than 170,000,000 population have fallen to the Reich.

Heralded by martial music over German radios, the Nazi high commands report on the fall of Athens said briefly:

"Troops of the German army fighting in Greece in pursuit of the enemy . . . arrived in Athens at 9:25 a. m. (Sunday)."

Nazi press reports said the city was taken without a fight—with no bomb or shell-fire destruction. The London radio said the last message broadcast by the Athens radio stated the capital was being bombed and the streets machine-gunned by German troops.

NAZI RESIDENTS CHEER

DNB, official German news agency, said German residents cheered as the gray-green clad Nazi legions marched in, while the Greeks looked on in stoic silence.

In London, the Balkan debacle produced less crepe-hanging than the collapse of France last year, with the British press focusing its attention on aid from the United States in the critical "Battle of the Atlantic"—England's own life-or-death struggle to survive against the German blockade.

A new theater of action appeared on the verge of opening with the French government's announcement that "free French" forces under Gen. Charles de Gaulle, supported by British mechanized troops, were massed along the southern border of French Somaliland, East Africa.

De Gaullist followers were reported to have concentrated at Dacuanleh, just inside French Somaliland while others disembarked at Zeila, in adjoining British Somaliland.

In North Africa, British middle east headquarters reported that Axis columns striking into Egypt toward the Suez Canal scored "little or no progress" yesterday.

CHURCHILL TALK SHELVES CONVOY PLAN

WASHINGTON, April 28 (AP)—Winston Churchill's high appraisal of the role of the United States Navy's extended off-shore patrol in the "Battle of the Atlantic" aroused keen interest today on Capitol Hill.

Ever since President Roosevelt disclosed Friday that naval vessels were operating great distances at sea in the interests of hemisphere defense, many legislators have been frankly uncertain just what significance the widened patrol zone might play in the program of aid to Britain.

Mr. Roosevelt carefully avoided connecting the extension of the patrol with anything except defense considerations, but the words of Prime Minister Churchill yesterday were interpreted in a number of quarters as proof that the step was calculated—at least incidentally—to furnish the greatest help possible to the Royal Navy in maintaining Britain's North Atlantic life line.

FRESH ARGUMENT

The forcefulness of some of Churchill's phraseology attracted special notice. The prime minister spoke of the patrol extension as representing "tremendous decisions" which brought him "indescribable relief." He also said that the United States was extending Britain "naval support," within the limits of the patrol plan, and voiced the belief that this country did not intend to be "frustrated" in its policy by permitting lease-lend supplies to be sunk by Nazi action.

Churchill's comments on the extended patrol policy in the opinion of some congressmen, would introduce fresh material for argument in the intensifying unofficial debate over whether the United States should resort to convoys to insure the safe delivery abroad of British aid cargoes.

TRANSFER MORE SHIPS

One early reaction was that the British Prime Minister's remarks might have the effect of pushing the convoy question into the background, at least for the present. The importance he attached to the assistance expected from the patrol, it was pointed out, would not encourage advocates of a convoy system to press their efforts until the effectiveness of the patrol plan had been tested. (Ships on patrol would report the presence of any submarine or surface raider sighted, thus enabling shipping to avoid the vicinity.)

As the convoy discussion proceeded, meanwhile, Sens. Norris (Ind.) of Nebraska and Russell (D.) of Georgia came out in favor of transferring more U. S. naval vessels to Britain before instituting convoys.

WOULD DELIVER GOODS

While saying he was anxious to see American supplies reach Britain, Russell informed reporters he did not yet favor convoys and would prefer the transfer of American warships to the British.

Senator Glass (D.) of Virginia, strong supporter of Administration foreign policy, told reporters he wanted "to deliver the goods Great Britain needs" and added:

"I am in favor of convoying the goods we sell or give and if necessary, carrying them in our own merchant ships. It is time to start convoying now—we should have been doing it long ago."

An informal poll of the Senate said to have been taken by leaders as a result of White House inquiries, indicated that at least 45 of the 95 members would oppose any legislation specifically authorizing convoying.

Approximately an equal number, it was said, would vote for the resolution by Senator Tobey (R.) of New Hampshire, to prohibit convoys if the proposal ever reached the floor for a vote.

The Tobey prohibition will be considered by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee Wednesday.

German Bomber Shot Down, Crew Man Kills Self

LONDON, April 28 (AP)—A German Heinkel bomber was shot down off the east coast by a British vessel early today and one of its four crewmen committed suicide, the Press Association, British news agency, reported. The other three, it said, were rescued.

...but he wanted no child of his own!

Only a woman knows what's in a man's mind when he asks: "Your having a baby won't make any difference—WILL IT?"

PAULINE knew what that question meant: She knew that a successful businessman has to have a wife who always looks smart ; ; ; A wife who can go on trips with him, if necessary;

Pauline's commandment had been laid down for her the day they were married. It said: Thou shalt not love our children before Me!

; ; ; And then came Julian Grove, Jr.—(only they called him "Mr. Nemo"). He had blue eyes and pink creases in his knees. He had a sturdy little heartbeat that flowed into hers. Even when she held him in her arms, she could never get enough of him. He was so unbelievably adorable that the mere idea of leaving him hurt her, like a sudden blow on the chest.

But she was Mrs. Julian Grove! She couldn't allow herself to do what other women do! She had to make a great decision. She had to be—

Cape Soldiers Advised To Protect Civilian Jobs

Attention, soldiers, protect your civilian jobs by keeping your employer advised as to your Selective Service status!

Such was the warning which came today from Brig.-Gen. Edgar C. Erickson, head of the state's selective service, who pointed out that registrants and trainees "owe that protection to employers so that they can protect your job for you."

Other developments on the military front included a visit of Gov. Saltonstall and his staff at Camp Edwards ,home of the YD.

Accompanied by Boston businessmen and old Harvard '14 classmates, William A. Barron, Jr., and James H. Lowell, all of whom were college roommates, paid a visit to Camp Edwards today.

They were the guests of Maj.-Gen. Roger W. Eckfeldt, Yankee Division commander, who was in the class at Harvard one year ahead of them.

The governor and party returned to Boston after lunching with Gen. Eckfeldt and being conducted on a tour of camp grounds.

An official visitor at the camp today was Maj.-Gen. Thomas A. Terry, commander of the First Coast Artillery District, nearing completion of a tour of New England defense areas, which began in Portland, Me.

Maj.-Gen. Terry inspected the 6000 officers and men of the 36th Coast Artillery (AA), commenting afterwards that he was "very much pleased" with the showing of the outfit's respective units, the 68th, 198th and 208th regiments and the 102nd separate battalion.

Morse Kin Joins Navy

The Navy won't be surprised if one of its latest recruits turns out to be a crackerjack signalman.

He is William H. Morse, a distant cousin of Samuel F. B. Morse, inventor of the telegraph.

Son of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert O. Morse, of 1222 Mammouth rd., Dracut, young Morse enlisted in the Navy last week and is awaiting transfer to the naval training station at Norfolk, Va.

His great great grandfather was a cousin of Samuel Morse, and William is the latest to uphold the Morse tradition of service to their nation.

FROM her wheel chair on the porch Mrs. Thomas watched the speed boats zooming across the bay. The breeze blew her hair back as if she were riding in the leaping boat herself. Her faded brown eyes sparkled.

If she sold her diamond ring she could buy a speedboat and rocket through the waves. What fun she and Cousin Kitty could have, if Cousin Kitty ever paid that long-talked-of visit. For years she had wanted to see Cousin Kitty with her red hair and witty ways. Kitty was always up to pranks, a regular wag she was. Mrs. Thomas chuckled as she remembered how Cousin Kitty used to make them giggle at family prayers.

But no, she wouldn't sell her diamond. It was so bright and gay. It was an engagement ring though she couldn't quite remember who had given it to her. She did not love it from sentiment, but because it sparkled so. Sometimes she let her companion, poor old Sarah, wear it. But she didn't dare lend it for long. Sarah might get to thinking she owned it.

Even for a speedboat, she wouldn't give up her diamond ring. No, she'd get a job as a teacher and earn big money, $40 a month, as she had done as a girl. They had shown her a clipping from her hometown paper, retelling the events of fifty years ago.

It mentioned her, Ellen Wishart, the popular young teacher whose contract had been renewed. Fifty years ago? It couldn't be. The family annoyed her when they insisted it had all happened so many years back. Why, she was still young. It was just touch of rheumatism that made her foot drag and her left hand so numb.

The Principal Character in "That Wag, Kitty."

MRS. THOMAS, tired of inactivity and life in a wheel chair, decides to pay a visit to Kitty, her girlhood chum and cut up, whom she still pictures as red-haired and a veritable wag.

That Wag, Kitty

By Isabel Johnston

Of course, she was Mrs. Thomas now but she couldn't quite remember just when she had gotten married. Once Sarah said it was just as well she forgot her marriage and all that unhappiness. As if she'd forget anything—or ever was unhappy! Why she could recall the pranks she and Cousin Kitty had played together as if it were yesterday. Of course, she knew as well as anyone it wasn't yesterday, but it might have been last month or week.

A WHITE-HAIRED LADY

It wasn't that she was vain about the ring. Why, she never looked into a mirror. Her gray haired companion, Sarah, helped her dress and combed her hair and scolded when she spilled jelly on her front. She's never been vain even when her beaux had complimented her big black eyes and long dark hair. The other day she had glimpsed a white haired old lady reflected in the glass door. She wondered vaguely who the old lady could be. Sarah, with her gray hair, was the only old lady in the place.

"Sarah!" she rapped on the floor smartly with her cane.

"Yes, Mrs. Thomas."

"Order the car! I want to go to the school board and see about a job next term!"

"Certainly, Mrs. Thomas." Sarah answered soothingly, but she did not stir from her rocker and her endless patch quilting.

"I'm going to make some money and have Cousin Kitty on," she insisted. "I can always get a job teaching. They said I was the best teacher in five counties."

"But you wouldn't like to take a job from the other young teachers, would you?"

"Let them look after themselves," Mrs. Thomas challenged them from her wheel chair.

Sarah spread out her patchwork, matching two pieces carefully. Mrs. Thomas restrained a sharp remark about old ladies and their quilting. It wouldn't be tactful to remind Sarah of her advancing years.

"I'll let you wear my diamond ring," Mrs. Thomas wheedled and then suddenly grew pink faced and haughty. "Well, why don't we go?"

"All right, but wouldn't you like to ride out and see the swans today?" suggested Sarah, folding up her patches and getting up leisurely.

Mrs. Thomas weakened. The swans were beautiful. The mother swan had built a nest. She would hate to miss the first sight of the swan babies. She agreed she could go and see the school board tomorrow and have Cousin Kitty on.

Next morning, Mrs. Thomas awoke in a towering rage. They hadn't taken her to the school board after all. First thing you knew it would be too late. Someone else would be earning the $40 a month that rightfully belonged to her!

"But you said you'd rather see the swans," Sarah pleaded.

"I never did. I never said any such a thing. How can you stand there, Sarah, and tell such lies to me!"

Mrs. Thomas grew so flushed Sarah was frightened for her blood pressure. The commotion aroused the household. In vain, they brought in the children to soothe her. She wanted to go and see the school board. She was going to make some money and have Cousin Kitty on!

A COMPROMISE

She was making herself sick with fury. Her married daughter suggested that maybe they could arrange to have her visit Cousin Kitty instead. They had been promising a trip to Cousin Kitty's for years and nothing ever came of it but now, Mrs. Thomas forgot the School Board in the preparations. They bought her a rose colored dress and a new hat. They drove her to the beauty parlor and had her hair marcelled. They purchased a bright scarf to take as a present.

It was nonsense for her married daughter to worry about the long, half a day drive. Mrs. Thomas sat beside John, the chauffeur and joked and laughed and sang hour after hour.

"She thought no voice had such a swing
As his'n in the choir,
Oh, when he made the rafters ring,
She thought the Lord was nigh, her."

trilled Mrs. Thomas.

She sang it over and over again, so that John could learn it, too. She let them persuade her to sing a naughty miners song she and Cousin Kitty had heard as girls.

"I'll lay five dollars down
And lay it in the dirt,
If I can find the fellow
Who stole George Whittiker's shirt."

It was a gay, gay journey. In the back seat, even Sarah joined in. Mrs. Thomas beat out the rhythms with her good hand. Mrs. Thomas . . . no, Ellen Wishart . . . was going to see Cousin Kitty, her girlhood chum, again.

Their destination, a modern new Colonial home on an avenue of tall, dignified old maple trees, was reached after a six-hour trip.

Mrs. Thomas vigorously denied that she was tired! Not she! She could hardly wait until they got her wheel chair from the back and unfolded it for her. She was so eager to see Cousin Kitty. With John's strong arm helping her, she got out of the car and into it in no time at all. In a skip, almost! She quite forgot her usual routine of fears and hesitations. She was in such a confusion of joy.

A bent old lady in black was hobbling down the path to greet them. Mrs. Thomas' eyes twinkled. It was just like Kitty to be up to a joke. She returned the old lady's kiss gaily. In another moment the old lady would straighten up into lithe young girlhood, snatch off the white wig, wipe painted wrinkles off her face and be Cousin Kitty herself.

"LET'S GO HOME"

But no, the old lady tottered up the path beside the wheel chair, unchanged. Mrs. Thomas felt muddled. The journey had been long. Then running into all these strangers was enough to confuse anyone.

Two tall young women came bounding down the steps to help John in with Mrs. Thomas chair. One of these must be Cousin Kitty. The brown haired one had Cousin Kitty's roguish smile, but Cousin Kitty's hair was red. The other girl, her hair was reddish blonde, but she looked so serious. Mrs. Thomas felt angry at herself at having her memory fail her. Imagine, not knowing Kitty!

Politely, she covered up her confusion, admired the new house, exclaimed over the tea and pretty cakes they offered her. She couldn't quite follow the chatter. In secret dismay, she looked from the old lady to the two young women. Perhaps the kitchen door would swing open and Cousin Kitty would pounce in at last. But no, they all sat down. No one else was expected.

Nervously, Mrs. Thomas tugged at Sarah's sleeve.

"Which is Cousin Kitty?" she demanded, her whisper tremulous and shrill.

"Why, I'm Cousin Kitty," the old lady's face wrinkled into a kindly smile.

"Of course," Mrs. Thomas tried to humor her politely, but she felt sick and terrified inside.

This last joke of Cousin Kitty's—pretending to be wizen and ancient — was more than she could bear. She couldn't stand all these strangers chattering on so unfeelingly. The noise and strain was too much for her good manners.

"Let's go home," she quavered, with a faint attempt at her old imperiousness. "Order the car! Let's go home quickly!"

THE END.

Our Austen Lake in England

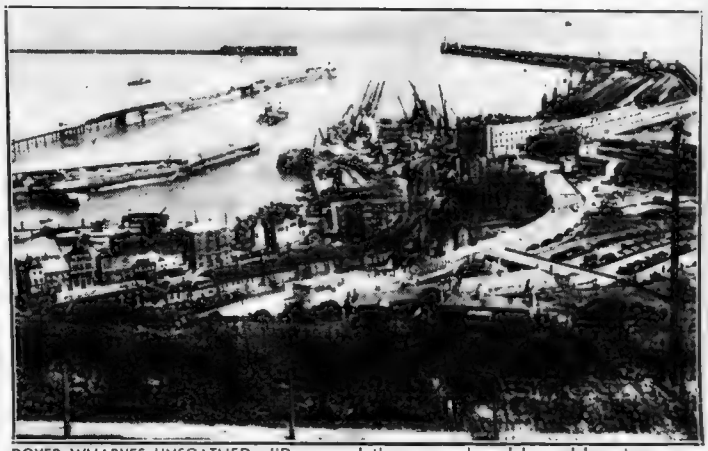
DOVER, England, April—There is a strong touch of defiance in the life of the townspeople of Dover, that historic little port-hamlet in the southeast corner of England where, pre-war times, the tourist packets from Calais, Le Havre, Hamburg used to berth. It is an unimaginative town, which lies between twin heights, from one of which an ancient Roman-Norman-Tudor castle frowns, and from t'other a fortress glowers steadily across the channel toward Cape Gris Nez and the long range batteries of Nazi cannon.

On clear days from the castle keep, a square, middle century tower, one can see the Cape as a low-lying, dark smudge. And on clear days, too, squadrons of Nazi Messerschmitt fighters and bombing Dorniers come over on missions that are purely mischievous.



DOVER WHARVES UNSCATHED—"Dover and the summery channel beyond lay at peace in the late afternoon. The wharves, which point like concrete fingers out to sea and where, in the evacuation of Dunkirk, an armada of all manner of vessels brought back British troops, are repaired and unscathed."

For there is no concentrated shipping coming and going from the port these days, none of the great, sea-going liners from the East, or foreign-flagged merchantment from the four quarters of the globe.

I went there expecting to find Dover a ghost-town of gaunt, inhabitable ruins, like those spectoral, shell-wrecked villages in northern France during the last war. It was not! The townspeople pursue the even tenor of their ways through prim, drowsy streets. A cinema advertised Claudette Colbert in "Arise My Love." Tobacconists sold Abdullah, Three Castles and Players cigarettes. You could buy a scrawny two-pound broiler for 7 and 6 ($1.75) or an assortment of pressed meats and tinned biscuits. Tearooms were open. Pubs announced that "Guinness is good for you." And wives with shopping sacks and farmers with wagon loads filed through the narrow lanes. Except for an occasional reeling house, or vacancies in the skyline like toothless gaps in an old crone's gums, or the barrage of overhead balloons, Dover life was normal.

BOMBED DAILY

Daily the German guns fire a few salicious rounds into the town, random shots that land helter-skelter—in streets, among houses or shops. It has been going on for six months. There is no raid signal for the guns and the Doverites never know at what hour, day or night, a Nazi battery commander might have a capricious notion to spew another dose of high explosive 22 miles over the channel's silvery belt—whistling wooshes which hiss overhead and strike with a thumping crash.

Two of them came over—for usually they come in pairs, as I stood on the top of a Plantagent tower, looking over the herringbone roofs of the houses, like standardized toys whittled for export markets and lined in miniature rows. The shots were not, as I had known their sound in that previous war, a shinnying whisper that rose sharply to a sibulent squeal. They came like the gradually growing sound of a seltzer bottle, fizzing to a crescendo that ended like a subway train rumbling to a station stop. They were impressive!

Yonder on the flat plane there was a thunder-like clap, a splash of masonry, from which a white cotton-ball cloud unfolded leisurely, like a blossoming flower, and kicked upward in a swirl above a central vortex. Another followed within a few minutes, somewhat beyond the first and further to the left—this one a geyser of black dirt that seemed to hang deliberately in the air and spread like the spray of a fountain.

That was all for the moment, just sinister reminders to the civil population that Nazi Germany was thinking of them—"postcards" the people call the shells. The aerial bombs are "parcels."

SAW HOMES IN RUINS

Later in the afternoon I motored down from the castle and saw a section of newly transformed homes, which that morning had been comfortable family dwellings filled with the little simplicities of workaday life. Now they were shapeless heaps of brick and mortar where volunteer rescue squads scratched to find the buried body of a night laborer. The acrid stench of gunpowder pervaded the spot, bringing nausea.

There were children playing in the parks of Dover, bare-legged lads who kicked at rag footballs and bickered in shrill voices. And intermittently as I watched one would cock an inexpert ear with attentive apprehension, his small knees bowed in a springing attitude until, reassured that the unfamiliar sound was not another German shell, he relaxed and added his tongue to the treble pack.

For at Dover, as all over England today, children, if they have ever left at all, are coming home to live—or die—with their parents. For the British working classes have fatalistically ignored government pleas less and less to evacuate youngsters to the upland country. They prefer, if necessary, to die together.

The famous white chalk cliffs of Dover face the Nazi-held French coast, precipitously high eminences of sponge rock where from early Saxon times people have tunneled shafts that run deeply and intermesh in a series of internal galleries.

Prisoners of the Napoleonic wars were quartered there. Smugglers have hidden their contraband there. Wine merchants have kept their vintages cool there.

Now they are used as raid shelters by the Dover people and as safety refuges in case of German invasion. Whole series of new arcades are being driven inward like the shafts of a mine, stocked with tinned foods sealed behind burglar-proof walls and piled with five-gallon, empty tins, for storing water, fitted with sanitary facilities and medical alcoves—an underground city that is dank, fetid and dark.

There today and for the unpredictable duration of this war families go night-times for secure sleeping, keeping part of their household permanently in favorite ells or crannies and living daytimes on the bare necessities.

MOTHERS HIDE BABES

In one of the deepest recesses I found several mothers with their infant broods who, frightened by the sound of the guns, had come to hide and had remained by the light of gasoline torches to chat, sooth their infants and munch meager lunches. There was that in the scene which suggested a reversion to the original, prehistoric darkness of the human-dawn period—the Neanderthal cave people.

Dover is badly cracked, but not shattered! Across from St. Mary's Convent, now evacuated by the nuns and turned into a hostel for homeless refugees (I had lunch there), St. James' Church has been spattered by bombs, its rose window a gaping hole, its doors charred, its nave shattered. Mrs. George Brown, a rotund, rudy-faced woman in her fifties, is the commandant of the hostel who assigns homeless families to the cubicles where the sisters once slept and superintends the big buttery where derelict folk eat free, hot meals.

She herself had been bombed out twice, but she smiled cheerfully. The thing she hated worse, she said, was the destruction of her rose garden, a life's hobby. "The bombs didn't do that," she ventured, "our own demolition crews did." Clearly she resented the demolition crews worse than the Nazi bombers.

The waterfront has taken the brunt—not the docks and warehouses so much as the harborside rows of workers' houses, several tourist hotels and the shops.

PEOPLE CALM

The wharves, which point like concrete fingers out to sea and where, in the evacuation of Dunkirk, an armada of all manner of vessels brought back British troops, are repaired or unscathed. A pair of ships have been sunk at the opening between the two encircling arms of the breakwall, their masts protruding from the water as makeshift channel buoys.

It was a bright day, with the channel falling away in opalescent distances, crowned by thunderhead clouds, irridescent as soap bubbles. As I watched, a little coastal freighter churned northward with a trail of coal barges and an overhead escort of Hurricane fighter planes, which were little more than protective specks. Far away on the Nazi-held coast, observation balloons undoubtedly saw the little convoy and telephoned its intelligence to the air centers. Perhaps before the freighter reached the Thames estuary a swarm of Dorniers would come droning over with their crates of lethal eggs.

But while I watched nothing happened. Dover and the sunny channel beyond lay at peace in the late afternoon warmth. The balloon barrage drowsed at the end of their cables, waggling their elephant ears like circus beasts.

Housewives hurried home for evening suppers. Workmen, coats slung over arms, stopped at the Sleeping Boar and Tom Jenkins' place for a pint of bitters. Shopkeepers prepared to roll down steel shutters. Farmers turned their empty carts countryward. Life seemed tranquil.

So I took the London afternoon express, with its toy locomotive and penny whistle, from the Dover station, where bombs had chewed away part of the roof. As I left, the first evening air siren, like an evil angelus, began its undulating "Hoooo-wooos." Dover was having its nightly visitation.

Tomorrow, in the Boston Evening American, Austen Lake continues his thrilling narrative of life in bomb-torn London.

DAYLIGHT SAVING TIME makes one's waking hours seem longer and doubly worth living.

Many a reader now finds himself asking:

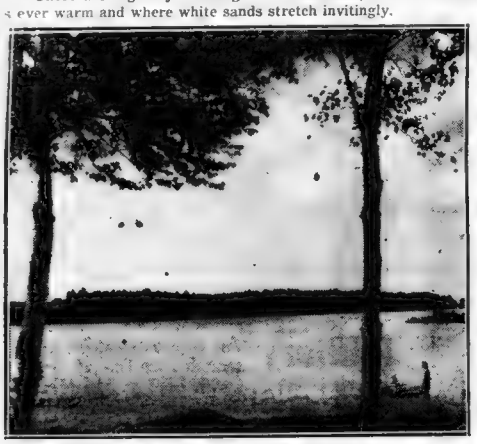
"What shall I do; where shall I go?"

In New England that question can be answered simply and easily.

One may go almost anywhere and have a good time.

There are highways leading to mountains, some of them still snow-capped.

There are highways leading to the seashore, where the sun is ever warm and where white sands stretch invitingly.



A TYPICAL SCENE ON A NEW ENGLAND LAKE
Use Your Automobile and See It This Summer

There are highways leading inland—to rivers, streams, forests and green rolling hills.

There are highways leading to great, palace-like hotels and to tiny farmhouses.

It does not matter much which highway one takes.

The important thing is to take SOME highway.

Thousands of our New England people have never seen the White Mountains of New Hampshire or the beautiful Berkshires of Massachusetts.

Thousands have yet to make the acquaintance of Maine's rockbound coast, Rhode Island's silver beaches, Connecticut's picturesque countryside and Vermont's deep valleys.

Thousands still look forward to the pleasure of visiting Plymouth Rock, the Pilgrims' Monument in Provincetown, the Revolutionary War Battlefield in Lexington and other American History shrines.

The time to see these things is NOW.

WE IN AMERICA have much for which to be thankful—much more than the average person realizes.

We have no rationing of gasoline or no restrictions on motor mileage.

We may buy all the food we want without having to produce a card to be punched by some one in authority.

We can take pictures and sketch scenes to our heart's content, and nobody will question our motives or suggest that we are foreign government agents.

We can cross city, county and State boundaries as often as we desire without being compelled to show credentials or required to explain our missions to suspicious guards.

If we behave as civilized persons and respect the rights and property of other people, we can do what we wish and go where we please.

We owe it to ourselves to take advantage of these opportunities—opportunities that less fortunate men and women in other countries can only dream about.

AT THE SAME TIME we owe our fellow Americans in the Middle-West, West and South the joy of joining us in the happy pastime of seeing New England.

Fortunately, no American needs to leave the territory of the United States for his vacation, unless it be to visit our good neighbors, Mexico and Canada.

Our New England duty is to see all that there is to see in our lovely six States and then to let other Americans know about the really wonderful things we have to offer.

The place for the family automobile is ON THE HIGHWAY. And it should be going SOMEWHERE.

The Talk of Boston

by Pauline Warren

YOU HAVE probably read that the Duchess of Leinster is in Boston, staying at the Chilton Club.

She came here to be guest-of-honor at a luncheon in the "Old English Pub," the Bundles-for-Britain booth, at the Carnival for Freedom, in Boston Garden. Incidentally, there were no fish-and-chips at the luncheon—only sandwiches and beer, fare which, though adequate, can hardly be called royal.

THE DUCHESS, however, enjoyed it all very much—the rugged bar with its huge kegs of beer, the scenic murals, the rustic chairs and tables, and the funny old red and white costumes of the barmaids.

Luncheon was hardly over when she surprised everyone by donning one of the huge white aprons and bonnets and acting as bar-maid herself, for the whole afternoon. Expertly, she dashed between tables without spilling a drop of ale.

Most of the customers, who had wandered in the "Pub" while looking the Carnival over, had no idea that a real Duchess was waiting on them. But to the few who recognized her it brought up quite a problem. Does one tip a pretty Duchess, acting as bar-maid in a "Pub" for charity's sake?

ONE resourceful young man solved it beautifully by asking in a resonant voice:

"Where do the tips go?"

"To the British War Relief," answered the hurrying Duchess, clutching four steins of beer in each hand. Whereupon our young man emptied his pockets of all cash and placed the money on the table for the Duchess.

We were quite fascinated by the "Pub" and its olden atmosphere but a little surprised at finding in its 1760 milieu a brand-new shiny juke box, in which you could drop a nickel and get "Frenesi" or any other popular song.

NEXT TO US were two committee members who were regretting the fact the circus had no big time personality to act as crowd getter.

"Jack Benny or Fred Allen were suggested," wailed one of them, "but one woman confessed she had never even heard of them."

This so bewildered us we looked it up. It's true enough. The woman even further explained that she does not listen to the radio, never goes to the movies and seldom reads the newspapers.

BUT, to return to the Duchess. We looked up her history.

She is an American and is the second wife of the Duke, who has been called the "Hereditary King of Ireland," since he succeeded to the ancient title of First Duke in Ireland in 1922.

He is often referred to as the "Little Duke" by his Irish tenants. His first wife was May Etheridge, London musical comedy star.

The present Duchess is the former Mrs. Raffaele Van Neck, only daughter of J. H. Patterson of New York and Connecticut. Her first husband was Clare Van Neck, the orchestra leader.

After their marriage, the Duke and Duchess resided at the ducal estate in Eire, and the Duchess was considered one of the outstanding beauties in the European nobility until Hitler put a stop to all that.

DUCHESS OF LEINSTER GREETS YOUNG ADMIRER
And Takes Leading Role in Boston "Carnival for Freedom"

THE TOWN is still tittering over a prank played at a recent wedding.

It was a very glittering affair with all of Boston society crowding the Leslie Lindsey Memorial Chapel, favorite marriage place of the elect.

The floral decorations were white orchids; the organ was played by a famous organist; the bride was gowned to perfection, and the bridesmaids were like a bright bouquet in their pastel perfection.

THE GROOM, though looking a bit self-conscious as grooms always seem to, behaved with courageous aplomb until he knelt down and heard quickly-repressed laughter rippling through the perfumed, crowded church.

He just couldn't understand what he had done.

He hadn't done anything at all—but his best man and ushers had been busy. On the fresh new soles of his shiny patent leather pumps they had chalked inter-twined hearts.

IF YOU DON'T believe this we can give you the name and telephone number of the young lawyer to whom it happened.

A friend of his telephoned and asked him to help a poor woman who was in legal difficulties.

Our lawyer performed about twenty-five dollars worth of work, but decided to charge her only ten, since she was obviously not well off.

BUT, after receiving the bill for ten dollars, the woman came to his office, wept all over the place and said she doubted if she could pay even such a slight sum.

"Forget it altogether," said the lawyer, wanting to do the generous thing.

Five minutes after she left the office, she returned with the bill.

"Please—will you receipt this as paid," is what she commanded.

And, of course, the story has the usual ending. Our friend, thoroughly mad, did a little investigating and found the woman owns property and a neat little bank account.

TUGWELL, CORCORAN END FEUD

By Leonard Lyons

NEW YORK, April 28—Rex Tugwell found it necessary to fly to Washington last week, on a matter of extreme importance. He missed the plane. American Airlines told him of a special plane which was leaving for Washington within a few minutes—a plane in which there would be only one other passenger . . . Tugwell entered that plane, and recognized the other passenger—Tommy Corcoran, whose feud with him had endured for three years . . . Before the plane landed in Washington, Tugwell and Corcoran ended that feud, and now are friends once more . . . Frank Mason, NBC's vice-president, has become a $1-a-year aide at the Navy Dept. . . . In June, George Ade and others will organize a National Mark Twain Society. The organizers will convene at Ade's home in Brook, Indiana . . . Thomas Benton read the news-clippings of his attack against the Art museums, then said: "Well, I've put on my Big Show in N. Y., and now I'm going home to be a real artist again." . . . Elsa Maxwell, who is going to South America on a solo campaign for Pan-American relations, was introduced to Ciro Algeria, at the Waldorf. Algeria is the author of a prize-winning novel . . . "Ciro can't be your name—because I invented the name 'Ciro'," Elsa insisted. "I gave that name to a famous night-club in Paris."

IN WILLIAM SAROYAN'S new hit, "The Beautiful People," Don Freeman, the artist, plays a muted trumpet solo off-stage. Saroyan told this to Cecilia Agar . . . "If Mr. Freeman is to play a muted trumpet backstage," Cecilia asked, "how do you know his notes will carry?" . . . Saroyan suggested that they go to the artist's apartment, and make the test. And so they visited Freeman, in his home on Columbus Circle—but the artist was too bashful to play the trumpet then . . . Saroyan and Mrs. Agar left, and walked to the Hampshire House, where Saroyan lives. And all during that walk in the dusk of that Sunday afternoon, they heard Don Freeman—sitting before his open window—playing his trumpet solo, clear across Columbus Circle.

CECIL ROBERTS, the poet-novelist, was introduced to Carl Sandburg—and reminded him of their meeting at Rollins College, in Florida. "Remember—there were 10,000 people assembled there, in the open, to hear you speak?" said Roberts . . . "Yes, I remember—and I remember what I thought at the time," Sandburg replied. "When I was a ball-player, I played before 10,000 people. But at Rollins College, I realized that playing to them is easier than speaking to them."

IN 1933 IRVING STONE finished the manuscript of "Lust for Life." He was in Los Angeles, and had no money with which to get to N. Y. to market his script. He got a job on the S. S. Pennsylvania, sailing to N. Y. via the Panama Canal. Stone's job was in the spud-locker way down below, peeling potatoes . . . When the S. S. Pennsylvania reached N. Y. Stone left it, went to a publisher—and "Lust for Life" became a best-seller. Since then, Stone has written two other best-sellers, "Sailor on Horseback" and "False Witness" . . . Now he's at work on a Clarence Darrow biography, and booked passage on the S. S. Argentina, for a cruise to Rio . . . On board that vessel, Stone—from his first class de-luxe suite—toured the ship. Down below, he sensed something familiar. He called the steward, and asked him: "Did this ship ever belong to the Panama Pacific Line?" . . . "Yes, sir," the steward informed. "It once was the S. S. Pennsylvania."

RICHARD BRADFORD, eight-year-old son of Roark Bradford—the creator of "John Henry" and "Green Pastures"—saw "Hellzapoppin" twice, during his visits to New York. Last week, when the Billy House touring company of "Hellzapoppin" played in New Orleans, where the Bradfords live, young Richard decided to see it again . . . Before the curtain went up he purchased a soft drink, which he didn't start to drink until House had appeared onstage. The soft drink was warm, and young Richard showered it from his lips. It splattered a lady seated in front of him. She glowered at the boy, who quickly explained: "Sorry, ma 'am—but I'm with the show."

WHAT MOOD women will be in during June is the thing some star gazers are now predicting. For instance, Sagittarians will, the astrologers claim, "be surprisingly domestic." That "surprisingly" sounds a little like a nasty crack. Anyway, if your wife is a Sagittarian, do not annoy her with love in June; she will prefer to clean house . . . Adolf Hitler has said: "A nation denied its rights may use any weapon, even bacteriological warfare." There is one thing Der Fuehrer doesn't like about bacteriological warfare; it works both ways. The British could use it, too. And don't think they wouldn't if pushed too far . . . Who would you say are America's "ten most powerful citizens?" Not long ago a contemporar, suggested as the most powerful ten: 1, Franklin D. Roosevelt; 2, Eleanor Roosevelt; 3, William S. Knudsen; 4, General George C. Marshall; 5, John L. Lewis; 6, Cordell Hull; 7, Henry Morgenthau; 8, Thurman Arnold; 9, Harry Hopkins; 10, Jesse Jones.

AS TO WHY a man's coat buttons from left to right; a woman's right to left. The man's system originated in the Middle Ages; made it easier for him to draw his sword if attacked. The woman's system comes from the fact that women carry a baby in the hollow of their left arm and by unbuttoning their coats from right to left they could do so without disturbing the baby . . . The traditional Kentucky Derby breakfast is batter cakes, bacon and eggs, grits, fried apples, biscuits and coffee . . . "Lowered Waistlines Is the Paris Edict," says the headline of a cable dispatch. What is a lowered waistline? Is it when a tall girl wears a belt where she shouldn't? It would seem when a woman started dressing according to the physical attributes with which nature has endowed her, and not according to what Paris or any other style center rules, that would be the beginning of style wisdom on her part.

SPEAKING OF LOVE, Alexander Pope said: "The man that loves and laughs must surely do well." La Rochefoucauld observed: "The pleasure of love is in loving; and we are much happier in the passion we feel than in that which we inspire."

CROW AND CAT meat is now being served in the best restaurants in Paris. That's not nearly as bad a food situation as in the Franco-Prussian war when a Paris newspaper printed on its domestic science page an article "How to Catch and Cook a Rat" . . . "Give me four years to teach the children and the seed I have sown will never be uprooted," said the Soviet's Lenin. Many a seed of Communism has been sown in the public schools of the United States by followers of Lenin's ideas. How much do you know about the teachers of your children?

MY DAY

By Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Sunday—The flight up to San Francisco on Friday afternoon was very smooth and pleasant. One of the things I look forward to most is a view of the bay from the window of the Mark Hopkins Hotel. I think they know how much I enjoy it, because I am always given a room from which I can see the water.

The Democratic state vice-chairman, Mrs. Porter, and her assistant, Miss Bauer, came to see me, and I enjoyed my chat with them very much. After the lecture in the evening, Mr. Paul Posz took us to Judge and Mrs. William Denman's house. I had the pleasure of meeting the various South and Central American consuls with their wives, and the Chinese consul and his wife. It was a very pleasant party and it was a real surprise to me to find that it was near 1 when we left.

Saturday morning, we visited Mayris Chaney's hat shop and bought a hat or two, which has become a habit when we come to San Francisco. Then we went to Chinatown to do a little shopping and stop at the committee headquarters to buy a ticket for the Rice Festival.

This festival must be extremely colorful and interesting. The proceeds this year will be given to Chinese orphans and refugees. Two charming girls sold me my pin, and I lost my heart completely to a little five-year-old, who looked very dignified and charming in her long Chinese gown.

LATER I visited a Chilean cargo ship, which was manned by their navy. On it some 32 Chilean ensigns are getting their first naval experience. It was interesting to find two young men named Delano among the ensigns. The Delanos in this country have some relationship to them I think, at least my husband always claims it.

Some friends lunched with me and then, before we knew it, we were on our afternoon plane headed for Los Angeles. Just before 7 o'clock, we reached the Melvyn Douglas home. I found Mrs. Douglas busy with twenty Democratic women discussing their work, so I had an opportunity for a short chat with them also.

BRUCE CABOT GETS NEW CONTRACT

By Louella O. Parsons

Bruce Cabot

HOLLYWOOD, April 28—Bruce Cabot can thank his lucky stars for Joe Pasternak. At the time Joe decided to give Bruce the male lead opposite Marlene Dietrich in "The Flame of New Orleans" there was a lot of criticism and some of it unnecessarily unkind. One writer said Bruce was no draw at the box office and that he was more interested in co-starring with pretty girls in night clubs than he was in his career. But what a change since the preview of "The Flame of New Orleans!"

He is so good in Pasternak's drama—such a definite he-man personality with a Gable appeal that over the week-end Walter Wanger signed him on a long-term contract. Bruce will have the male lead in either "Sundown" or "Eagle Squadron." If he gets "Sundown" he'll be directed by Henry Hathaway. In the meantime Wanger's new star and Joe Pasternak have been in New Orleans where "The Flame of New Orleans" had its premiere and they were given a royal reception.

THERE HAS BEEN considerable speculation as to where Sam Goldwyn would release his movies now that he and United Artists have parted company. Goldwyn now has made a deal with RKO to release his product through this organization. Just as William Dieterle, Harold Lloyd, Frank Ross and Norman Krasna have independent organizations, make their own movies and have an RKO outlet, so will Sam continue to do his picture-making at his own studio, releasing through the RKO medium. Goldwyn brings to RKO as his first contribution, Bette Davis in the "The Little Foxes" and Gary Cooper in "The Professer and the Burlesque Queen."

SO FAR the movie separation of Jeanette MacDonald and Nelson Eddy hasn't caused a ripple among the fans. Probably because Jeanette and Nelson have solo pictures of equal importance. Jeanette stars in "Smilin' Thru" with Brian Aherne. Nelson Eddy will play with Rise Stevens, Metropolitan Opera singer, in "The Chocolate Soldier." Not since Grace Moore made her spectacular entrance on the M-G-M lot as Lawrence Tibbett's singing partner, has any prima donna created as much interest as Miss Stevens—young and attractive and believed by M-G-M to have definite photogenic qualities.

EDDIE ALBERT returns to the Warner Brothers lot today after being away 10 days. I was sorry his illness made it impossible for him to be on our broadcast, "The Wagons Roll at Night," but Ronald Reagan, did a splendid job. As for Humphrey Bogart, Mayo Methot, Joan Leslie, the telegrams prove stronger than any words how swell they were. Eddie will not go back into "Navy Blues," at Warners but he will be put into another picture soon. How about giving him a comedy? That is certainly the thing he did best on the stage.

She has taken off pounds and pounds and it isn't agreeing with her; Addison Randall has gone to New York and there is considerable debate in the town as to which one of the girl friends is the attraction; Jean Kelly, Universal's serial queen, and John Shelton, have been doing the night spots together.

SCOOP DEPT. . . . Dorothy Preston has chosen the date for her wedding to Charles P. Ware . . . It's to be June 7 at picturesque Christ Church, Hamilton, followed by a large outdoor reception in the gardens at Seven Pines, the beautiful Hamilton estate of her mother, Mrs. B. Preston Cutler . . .

But Dottie and Charles are having some difficulties in completing detailed plans for the affair . . . The time has gone by, it seems, when a bride and groom could choose their attendants and make all other decisions a month or more in advance and take it easy during the last few weeks before the wedding . . . so they could enjoy the round of parties given for them before the Big Day . . .

Nowadays with the bridegroom, or at least half his best friends, serving Uncle Sam in the Army and Navy, a couple is lucky if they know three days in advance who's going to be best man and whether they can procure enough ushers to see that guests are properly seated at the church . . .

Charles will have his brother for best man provided he is able to obtain leave from a camp in Texas . . . and the same goes for several of his best friends whom he wants to have as ushers . . .

Dottie's sister, Mrs. Farley Wheelwright of New York, will be matron of honor and there will be six bridesmaids . . .

Harvard Grad Takes Bride

Miss Betsy Beinecke, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Beinecke of Fifth ave., New York, was married Saturday afternoon in St. James Church, New York, to Carl Shirley, son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Shirley of Boston . . . Rev. Horace Donegan officiated.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of ivory illusion over satin, made with a square neckline and puff sleeves. Small sprays of orange blossoms trimmed the skirt and she wore a wreath of orange blossoms on her hair. Her bouquet was of white orchids, orange blossoms and pansies.

The six attendants, all from New York and distant cities, wore period gowns of apple green faille with natural leghorn hats trimmed with bands and streamers of green velvet.

Paul Shirley, Jr., of Boston was best man for his brother.

The bride belongs to the New York Junior League. Mr. Sairley graduated from Phillips Andover Academy and Harvard, class of '38.

A New Figure for Spring

Registered U. S Patent Office

By IDA JEAN KAIN

Stoutness is too high a price to pay for overeating. Since you've taken on weight you're not very happy about how you look.

And since you can't wear pretty clothes or anything, you are apt to think of eating as your main pleasure in life. What you've done is let it take the place of all the other pleasures.

No doubt you tried dieting but you were so hungry and depressed that you concluded you might as well be fat as miserable.

NO LONGER PAINFUL

But dieting isn't like that any more! You eat to get slim, thanks to the science of nutrition. The low calorie menu can be balanced to include an abundance of the essential minerals, vitamins and protein and it is now possible to reduce safely and without discomfort, no matter how excessive the overweight.

I mean it when I promise to take fifty to one hundred pounds off anyone who has that much to spare and is willing to co-operate. Her health will improve on the diet.

The first dietary step is to increase the protein. There are several reasons for this. Protein supplies the material to make good the daily wear and tear.

Because of its specific dynamic effect, protein acts like magic to burn more calories. Ordinarily, you can't eat more of something and reduce but science has proved that by using liberal amounts of the complete protein foods—lean meat, eggs, cheese and skim milk—you can reduce faster.

Vitamins and minerals are not stored along with fat so these are also included daily in the balanced diet. You must have fresh vegetables, raw and cooked; fresh fruits, whole grain or Vitamin B enriched bread, and butter in restricted amounts.

VEGETABLES NECESSARY

To assure adequate vitamins on a low calorie diet, you must either make a habit of choosing the rich food sources or supplement the menus with a concentrate. Because the dairy products which are high in Vitamin A are also high in calories they must be restricted.

But certain vegetables and fruits are excellent sources and should be included daily.

These are: One green leafy salad vegetable such as escarole, and one cooked green such as beet greens or spinach; a yellow vegetable, such as carrots or squash; a yellow fruit—peaches or apricots.

Minerals are not such a problem for sufficient iron—calcium and phosphorus are supplied in the lean meat, eggs, milk, cheese and greens specified in the balanced diet.

Follow these rules of nutrition in planning your diet.

Bananas in Blankets

By MARTHA LEE

Since the facts about the banana's life are pretty much an open book these days, we're not letting you in on any great secret when we talk about its great food value or its comparatively low cost either. But knowing these facts isn't proof against your getting tired of eating bananas in the raw for ever and ever. So we're offering a little variety, and we think you will agree that the recipes given today will give you more than just variety.

Surprise all with—Bananas in Blankets. They're quite different, and your guests won't know what's in store for them or just how delightful a dish you've "run up" until they've uncovered the blankets.

BANANAS IN BLANKETS

Plain pastry
2 large bananas
¼ cup sugar
6 tsp. cinnamon
Few grains salt

Roll pastry thin, cut in four 5-inch squares. Peel bananas, trim off ends, cut in halves crosswise. Dip bananas in mixture of sugar, cinnamon and salt. Arrange in center of pastry squares, sprinkle with remaining sugar mixture. Roll pastry around bananas, pinch ends together, prick tops with fork. Bake in very hot oven, 450 deg. F. until brown—about 10 minutes. Serve hot.

And just so you won't forget what a banana can do for sandwiches, we're listing a few suggestions:

SANDWICHES

Banana and Orange Marmalade on Whole Wheat Bread.

Peanut Butter and Banana on Raisin Bread.

Thinly sliced Baked Ham and Banana on Rye Bread.

Crushed Banana mixed with a little Brown Sugar and Lemon Juice on Whole Wheat Bread.

Open-faced toasted Banana and Bacon on White Bread.

BANANA BRAN NUT BREAD

¼ cup shortening
½ cup dark brown sugar, packed tight
1 egg, well beaten
1 tsp. vanilla
1 cup bran
1½ cups sifted flour
2 tsp. baking powder
½ tsp. salt
½ tsp. soda
½ cup chopped nut meats
¼ cups mashed bananas, fully ripened
2 tbsp. water

Cream shortening and sugar, add egg, vanilla and bran. Sift flour with baking powder, salt and soda. Add nut meats. Add water to mashed bananas. Add flour and bananas alternately with first mixture. Pour batter into greased and wax paper-lined loaf tin and let stand 30 minutes. Bake in moderate oven, 350 deg. F., one hour. Turn out on rack to cool. Store 24 hours before serving.

Smart Set Fashions

This Is Summer

WHITE and pastel shades enter a new life . . . they once belonged in resorts and the suburbs . . . now they throng into town. They travel, because the air-conditioned trains are so clean. And they lend a spandy air to the business section of town . . . where once the uniform was discreet navy, black or a print. And this suit, charming, distinctive, is Summer! Tailored with precision of a twill with acetate rayon . . . it has long, clean lines, and white binding to match the skirt . . . "natural" shoulders . . . whittled waist, long torso jacket.—ANNICE BRINK.

You Can Be Beautiful

Now 'Forbidden' Fragrance

By ARLINE GOULD

GLOBETROTTERS at one time were the only ones who brought into this country a very significant perfume . . . a rarity . . . a possessive, demanding fragrance which lingered so long that those who used it, said it seemed to never quite go away. Those who were lucky enough to get it . . . after its long trek from Johannesburg, Bombay, Singapore, London, Rio or Mexico City . . . swore it was the most lasting perfume they'd ever known.

And now a supply of it is available in this country, moved here no doubt through the exigencies of war . . . at any rate, the pre-war extracts are here . . . and there is just enough to last a year or two.

Though it's hard enough ordinary lily to put fragrance into words . . . to do it with this one is impossible . . . though one can say it isn't light . . . it has the faintest cloying sweetness which is highly intriguing. Many people for the first instant decide they don't like it . . . and then suddenly succumb to its fatal fascination! If we don't stop at this point, we'll be dragging Narda and her baneful orchid visitation into the story!

At any rate . . . the "forbidden" fragrance differs again in that it's never worn on the skin . . . only on gowns or furs, where it is said to actually give the impression of greatly enhancing the value of whatever it touches.

This is not an inexpensive perfume. The smallest size available isn't to be had exactly for pin money. However, there is a cologne which you'll surely want to have . . . and it isn't the least bit beyond your reach.

If you'd like to learn all about this "forbidden" fragrance . . . phone Arline Gould, LIBerty 4000, week-days except Saturday, or write, care of the Boston Evening American, inclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

"MIDDLE-AGE" WOMEN

(38 to 52 Years Old)

HEED THIS WARNING!

If you're going thru middle-age and are nervous, restless, cranky, blue at times, suffer weakness, dizziness, hot flashes followed by chilliness, a bloated heavy feeling, distress of "irregularities"—due to this period in a woman's life, THEN LISTEN—

Start today and take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound—famous for over 60 years in helping hundreds of thousands of women calm nervousness, lessen annoying distress due to this functional disturbance and thus help them to go smiling thru this "trying time."

Pinkham's Compound is one medicine you can buy today that's made especially for women. Taken regularly—it helps build up resistance against such annoying symptoms. Get a bottle right away from your druggist. Worth trying.

Many women who need to help build up red blood prefer Lydia Pinkham's Compound Tablets (with added iron).

IRENE DUNNE-CARY GRANT DRAMA, 'PENNY SERENADE,' AT LOEW'S SATURDAY

'Mary Dugan' Revival on Bill

"Penny Serenade," which reunites one of Hollywood's topflight romantic teams, Irene Dunne and Cary Grant, is due on Loew's State and Orpheum screens on Saturday.

Grant, playing a young newspaperman, meets Miss Dunne, a music store salesgirl, falls in love with her. They are married on New Year's Eve, just a half hour before he is to take off for Tokyo on an important news assignment there.

When they meet again three months later, Grant's casual carefree attitude towards his responsibilities sets up a barrier between them. The loss of the baby they had been happily anticipating and the knowledge that they can never have a child of their own increases the tension.

The story is said to pack plenty of dramatic punch, and Grant and Miss Dunne have been roundly salaamed for their fine performances. Important supporting roles are played by Beulah Bondi and Edgar Buchanan.

The companion picture, "The Trial of Mary Dugan," is the well-known courtroom drama co-starring Robert Young and Laraine Day.

"PENNY SERENADE," opening Saturday on Loew's State and Orpheum screens, again reunites Irene Dunne and Cary Grant, one of Hollywood's top romantic teams.

Jewish Musical Opens Friday Night

"Goldele Dem Bekers," musical which sets a Yiddish theater precedent by dispensing with "historic beards" and appealing to Jewish-American youth, opens a five-performance engagement at the Boston Opera House on Friday evening.

Menasha Skulnik, Uncle Dave of radio's Goldbergs, is co-starred with Herman Yablokoff, who also directed, and Bella Mysell.

Playbill

TONIGHT'S OPENING

PLYMOUTH — "THEATER," starring the celebrated monologuist, Cornelia Otis Skinner, in her first regular play production, brings the Somerset Maugham-Guy Bolton dramatization of the Maugham novel here following most successful Washington and Baltimore engagements.

FRIDAY NIGHT

BOSTON OPERA HOUSE—"Goldele Dem Bekers," I. Trilling's Jewish-American musical with Herman Yablokoff, Menasha Skulnik and Bella Mysell, comes here for five performances direct from a season's run in New York. Matinee and evening performances Saturday and Sunday.

CONTINUING

SHUBERT — "ROSE MARIE," Rudolph Friml's popular operetta with Nancy McCord and Alexander Gray, remains for a third week before departing following Saturday night's final performance for Dallas, Tex., and a Shubert summer season there.

MAY 13

Mabel Francis Casino's Star

Mabel Francis, who built up a sizeable following during two Casino engagements earlier in the season, is returning today with a new repertaire and her old joie de vivre.

The vivacious Mabel is amply supported by a brace of cuties who are probably the most eye-taking of any in the Hanover st.'s entire season of pulchritudinous productions. They are the curvacios Petite Carroll, Velita and Helen Green.

Nor does Frank X. Silk permit the fun to be overshadowed by eye-appeal. One of burlesque's most original laugh-makers, he has arranged a fast and funny comedy routine, assisted by that well-dressed comic, Bert Marx; Bob Rogers and Jerry McKeown.

The Casino dancing-dolls appear in completely new dances.

Cornelia Ideally Suited for Role

It seems entirely fitting that the starring role of "Theater," John Golden's production of Guy Bolton's dramatization of the Somerset Maughan novel, which opens two-week engagement here at the Plymouth Theater tonight, should be undertaken by Cornelia Otis Skinner, for Miss Skinner is a true daughter of the theater.

Her mother was the beautiful and gifted Maud Durbin; her father, one of the finest and most beloved actors of the American stage.

Cornelia Otis Skinner's interest in acting began overtly to manifest itself when she was a slender girl of 15 in the Baldwin School's production of "Macbeth." Once started, the spark of her ambition burned steadily.

From her preparatory school she departed with high acting honors and entered Bryn Mawr College with the scalps of her school dramatic triumphs at her belt.

The call of the stage grew more insistent and, after two years at college, Cornelia and her mother sailed for a year's residence in Paris. Here she was instructed in acting under Delhelly of the Comedie Francaise and Jacques Copeau. Later she returned to America and acted secondary parts in "Will Shakespeare," "White Collars," "The Wild Westcotts" and other plays in New York.

Soon afterward she developed the idea of recording the impressions of contemporaneous life. The result was a series of sketches, humorous, pathetic, tender and satiric which her photographic eye had caught.

She entered into a new medium—with herself as her own dramatist and impersonator, and these original sketches were vigorously acclaimed in the theater.

But the career of monologist—even an extremely successful monologist—could not satisfy her for long. She pioneered again and offered the first of her historical costume dramas for a single actress, "The Wives of Henry VIII."

This was followed by "The Empress Eugenie" and "The Loves of Charles II," which were no less successful than their Tudor predecessor. "In Mansion On The Hudson," Miss Skinner accomplished the extraordinary feat of acting a whole play all by herself. With "Edna His Wife," her own adaptation of Margaret Ayer Barnes' novel of the same name, she carried the art of solo drama to its highest peak.

Joan Collette Due At Globe on Friday

Joan Collette, siren of the burlesque footlights, will follow the currently starring Marie Cord into the Globe next Friday. Doubling in blassy comedy in the new Collette-starring revue will be that favorite of Hub burlesque patrons, Al Pharr.

NANCY McCORD stars in "Rose Marie" at Shubert.

HERE WE HAVE one of Walt Disney's clever creations in "Fantasia," which has only five more days to go at the Majestic.

JOAN WETMORE appears in "Theatre" at Plymouth tonight.

HARRY SPEAR AND THREE CHORDS STARS OF LATIN QUARTER

Beachcomber Rhumba Rhythm Draws Crowds

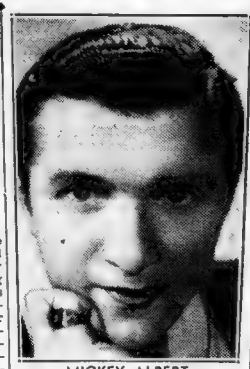
By SAM BERENSON

Gov. Leverett Saltonstall would be surprised if he knew that Harry Spear, Latin Quarter master of ceremonies, literally climbed out of a sick bed when he learned the Governor was attending the newspapermen's frolic last Thursday evening.

Harry didn't do a duet with His Excellency but he did sing "School Days" for him. The current Latin Quarter revue features lovely Audrey Palmer from "Higher and Higher," the sensational Three Chords, the hilarious Mary Jane Moore and Billy Revel, the ballet, the Four Gentlemen and Tony Bruno's Orchestra Don Dudley entertains with rhumba melodies . . . Folks who enjoy pleasant surroundings and danceable music will "go" for the smart Fox and Hounds on Beacon st.

The Versailles swings wide the week with a delightfully tempo'd show bill that will find a goodly part of the stay-up set making this spot after-dark headquarters . . . a brisk Manhattan production, spiced with allure and color throughout a neatly balanced program . . . additionally at the Versailles is that ace trumpeter, Bobbie Hackett . . . Al Tasler, manager here, announces special rates for banquets and parties . . . a cheery calling place is the Cocoanut Grove, popular oasis of the Rialto-roamers . . . this week Edward and Marion Nolan, Large and Morgner, Yvonne York and the Mickey Alpert rhythms . . . and at this time a nice handclasp for Mickey's guidance of those swell Thursday theatrical soirees . . . What with a new waxing contract and all in his pocket, Fletcher Henderson is too busy a maestro to do any further arrangements for Benny Goodman . . . scorings for Benny henceforward by Willie Moore . . . No longer will the Mills Brothers feature that simulation of instruments . . . future waxings will be a-front a sho' nuff swing outfit.

That smart atmosphere at Jack Fisher's Cave continues to spell considerable success for this delightful calling place . . . a lovely spot, made further beguilding by those trim revues headlined by the exotic song-gal, Tamara Doriva . . .



MICKEY ALPERT
Cocoanut Grove

a "different" tang here . . . Steuben's Vienna Room still holds its popularity for many of the Rialto set . . . always an excellent cuisine, with entertainment ably guided by maestro Lew Conrad

Ben Ford's Tic Toc club on Tremont st., swings along with some of the town's most hilarious entertainment with zany Joe Ross, currently convulsing audiences with his brand of humor.

A socko success from its very opening, Larry Thornton's Dreamwold Hall at Scituate continues to provide very favorable gossip among the stay-up lads and lassies . . . the recent face-lifting here finds Dreamwold smartly glistening in new interiors and a breath-taking cocktail lounge . . . it's Peter Walters' orchestra and Marie Stevens vocalist . . . Cappy North Easton parlor spotlights the light-footed Pat Rooney, 2nd, as its week's headliner . . . an ace attraction . . . while Dick Stabile and his band has a Wednesday date here . . . Morey Pearl's Pop-Eye provides a gay attraction out 3-A way . . . plenty of fun, with a slick band for your dancing pleasure . . . Fine reports of the success of the Bradford's Circus Room reach this corner . . . Muriel Welch is the headliner here.

The grass grows greener . . . it's spring, and to welcome the season the Hotel Essex Grill itself pops up with a grand May Revue that establishes his hostelry as a must visiting spot for the week . . . a brisk, Billy Kelly show-treat, with new talent in a gaily tempo'd offering . . . Bill Creagh well known in New England hotel circles and recently associated with the Taft Hotel in New York is the Essex new managing director . . . good luck and our best wishes Bill . . . Tommy Carr and his band at Levaggi's in Reading, pouring forth delightful tunes . . . Manager Pio Pini of the Broadway Hotel reports business excellent . . . Shaffie K. Hamsy, Hotel Touraine clerk has been elected to the board of directors of the Key Club of Boston, which is composed of "front office men" and junior executives of many of the hotels throughout Boston . . . Yvette Dare who recently appeared at the Latin Quarter writes us that she now has her own company, a secretary new car and chauffeur and most important is that her salary has jumped to $500 per week . . . and we almost forgot "Rasputin" in charge of publicity.

Our phone continues to ring at ten-minute intervals with Izzy Ort bursting with pride on the other end telling of the amazing show value that patrons will find at his Grill and El Tropico Room this week . . . for action is zooming in this popular oasis, with "names" featured left and right over the Ort hostelries . . . a particularly merry parlor, that El Tropico Room, styled in the South Sea vein . . . Dixie Faye takes top billing here.

A well-merited posie this week to that clever emcee, Archie Robbins, who adds so much delight to a visit at the smart Club Mayfair these evenings . . . in this top-flight entertainer, our village possesses one of the land's outstanding club personalities . . . Archie has kept Mayfair audiences practically a-rollin' in the aisles, and his type of showmanship finds few equals anywhere on the after dusk scene . . . It's the last week at the Crawford House for that whirlwind of tassel-tossery, Sally Keith, and if perchance you've missed this smoothly geometric dynamo, write yourself a memo on the nonce . . . a sleek Manhattan revue aids and abets Sally's finale . . . which sums to required calling ere week's out.

New Essex Manager

Up in Lawrence way Joe Wagenbach reaches deep into his hat of entertainment magic and draws forth one of the most tempting floor offerings that this colorful plaisance has presented all year . . . there's plenty of action to be found here, studded with "names" throughout, as is the Hofbrau's policy . . . big name bands will continue to be featured every Sunday throughout the spring and summer . . . Bossman Harry Sher of the Silver Dollar back from Miami and looking great . . . many new ideas are soon to be offered by Harry . . . Billy Payne getting along fair . . . a letter from many of his friends would help greatly . . . address City Hospital, Boston.

Billy Hurley's Log Cabin continues to win new friends, due in no small part to the policy of variety entertainment which this spot so consistently features . . . something different every night, all done in a bang-up style . . . with spring in the air, Dorgan's Old Harbor house in South Boston takes on further appeal . . . an atmospheric harbor setting, with delicious food and capable entertainment . . headlining . . . Eddie and Lucille Roberts head the Harry Drake show at the Westminister . . . Charlie Barnet, and his orchestra play this evening at the Lowell Memorial Auditorium . . . this affair is sponsored by the Lowell Kiwanis Club . . . Ribby's Allstan cafe is meriting a brisk bit of attention . . . particularly

"I wuz thinkin'...."

by Izzy Ort

Here I am, up in the air again, wingin' my way through the ozone wid the Mrs., on the American Airlines Flagship, on my way to peek in on that Great American classic of the turf, the Kentucky Derby. I know a coupla guys who always thought that the Kentucky Derby wuz a hat!

For a year I wuz toutin' a potential Boston champion in the person of Mike Kaplan, who has proved himself a real champion. By the end of the week I hope to bring you word of another champion, Little Beans, a hunk of horseflesh I think has a fair chance in the Derby this Saturday. I'm goin' to give you a special report by wire from the track and at the same time the nation's leadin' sports writers are givin' you the lowdown, you'll be readin' a story on the race in my column. I only hope (?) that I'm right! I'm goin' ta frolic a few days before the race in Knoxville, Tenn., with my very good friends, Mr. & Mrs. Judge Kern.

I'm throwin' some very good shows in the El Tropico Room and in my Grill while I'm away. Pop over and take a look at the sensational Hop and Pop, direct from the Apollo Theater in New York. They're great and so is DeGouchi, the Oriental manipulator, who can do more with his toes than most people can with their hands, and Adolphe and Cecile, are offerin' a Russian adagio, whatever that is, that'll knock you on your ear! For a night of fun and frolic, plus something good to eat, come in town and visit my Grill and El Tropico Room, 23 Essex St. near Washington. Adv.

Blinstrub's Show Offers Top Talent

Blinstrub's Village in South Boston inaugurated a star-spangled show week with one of the most appealing revues that this oasis has offered this year. Sensationalism and beauty characterize all Blinstrub revues and this one is exceptionally highlighted with these two items of showmanship. Master of ceremonies, Boyd Heathen, the Hub's outstanding singing conferencier, presents the revue in masterly and ingratiating style and Karle Rohde directs the musical portion of the show and provides toe-tapping music for dancing.

Fire Razes Building At U. S. Powder Plant

INDIANHEAD, Md., April 28 (AP)—Fire destroyed a building early today at the Navy's big Indianhead powder plant.

Capt. M. L. Hersey, in command of the plant, said only three men were working in the building and that none was injured. Cause of the blaze was undetermined, he said, "but there is absolutely no question of sabotage."

In Washington, the Navy Department said the fire was confined to the ether house and estimated the loss at about $150,000.

8 Hurt in Two Roxbury Mishaps

Eight persons, including three women, were injured in two Roxbury automobile accidents early today.

The first occurred on Dudley st., near Brook ave., when two vehicles collided almost head-on. Miss Mary Driscoll, 28, of Huntington ave., Back Bay, Mrs. Josephine Gannon, 45, of Dell ave., Roxbury, and Miss Mary Kelleher, 27, of Hillside st., Roxbury, suffered various cuts and lacerations.

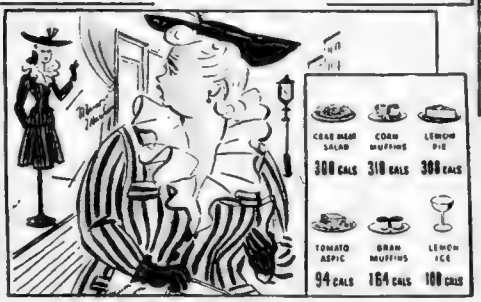
Three men in the same car, Charles H. Russell, 27, of Hobart st., Brighton; William Bowe, 23, of Brook ave., and John Gannon, 20, of Dell ave., Roxbury, were injured. The driver of the second auto, named by police as Robert J. O'Hara, 23, of Magnolia st., Roxbury, escaped injury.

John Bavineau, 26, of Vine ave., Roxbury, and William McMillan, 32, of Leyland st., Roxbury, occupants of a taxicab, suffered lacerations in a collision with an out-of-state auto at Washington and Brinton sts. Bavineau, the cab driver, was removed to City Hospital.

CRASH KILLS GIRL FLIER

EVANSVILLE, Ind., April 28 (AP)—Mildred Flentke, 25, school teacher and flying student, was killed in a plane collision at 500 feet on a solo flight.

Low-Calory Diet—Smartness



Reducing Diet as Tasty as Fattening One

No use deceiving yourself, Mrs. Puffy! That darling suit, which looks so "pencil slim" in the window, doesn't hide your bulges a bit.

There is a way you could get rid of them—the safe easy low-calory diet! By saying goodbye to high-calory bulge-building foods, you could lose 20 pounds in 10 weeks. Then you could look slim in anything.

Our 40-page booklet, Change Your Weight for Beauty's Sake, gives 42 low-calory menus, calory chart and low-calory dessert recipes. Also explains the 3-day liquid diet to start reducing. Tells how to gain.

BOSTON After DARK

By GEORGE HOLLAND

IN THE SPRING A YOUNG MAN'S fancy etc. . . . (Exclusive:) Gargantua's flop as a Romeo necessarily doesn't prove that the gorilla is a total bust in the art of pitching woo . . . Have the circus owners thought to investigate whether Franchot Tone or Victor Mature have been beating the big ape's time with Toto?

Addenda. Don't believe the stories of Chaplin's "reunion" with La Goddard . . . Don't completely discredit rumors of domestic dissension in the Jack Benny and Robert Taylor (Barbara Stanwyck) camps.

AND ALSO UNDER the heading of "romance" (because the boys were only throwing love-taps) don't — please don't — take seriously those stories that Edward G. "Scowis" Robinson and Georgie Raft have been squaring off. (Note: One of the first lessons Georgie learned in the hard Broadway he used to know was never to toss a punch — when out of condition — unless you held a roll of quarters in the right . . . And they mustn't play that way in Hollywood . . . If Robinson tossed a punch, Raft would stand by laughing.)

MONDAY MORNING MUSINGS: Rockey Palladino resembled John Garfield in the pictures in the Sunday Advertiser showing the North End lad with his good colt "Little Beans" . . . And although "Little Beans" is this column's Kentucky Derby hope, it will have three deuces on the nose of Blue Pair . . . "Blue Pair" is outclassed in the "Run for the Roses"—as thoroughly outclassed as "Gallahadion" was last year. (And like "Allegro" was Saturday at Gansett.)

ADVICE TO THE SMEARERS: The scribes of the American press, when covering the tragic Lindbergh baby kidnaping, gave the bereaved father the "silent treatment" . . . Although the reporters resented the Lone Eagle's treatment of them, and could not go along with his feeling that the tragedy was the family's business only — especially when the entire country, including the newspapermen, were trying merely to be helpful — the scribes respected Lindbergh's point of view, but ignored him.

They took out their ire on Colonel Norman Schwarzkopf, head of the New Jersey state police, who was no bargain himself as a diplomat.

NOT ONCE WAS a single smear line aimed at Lindbergh . . . The 1941 hatchet-men, and unfortunately newspapermen who should know better are included, are not as sensible . . . How do you think the American public of 1932 would have re-acted to an attempted assassination of Lindbergh's character because he disagreed with the commonly-held opinion that the kidnaping was a public—not a private affair?

If we must admit it, thousands of Americans agree with Lindbergh that the press is too intrusive at tragic times.

SO TODAY (WE THINK) there are thousands of thousands who agree with Lindbergh's isolationist stand . . . They aren't very articulate, these thousands, and perhaps they aren't very courageous, either . . . But you can't make millions of Americans believe that the serious-minded Lone Eagle, this country's outstanding hero of the flamboyant '20's, has sold out to Hitler . . . We can tell from the mail, if we didn't sense it unaided, that every smirch aimed at Lindbergh is resented by the very people the smears are intended to impress favorably.

ONE REASON WHY THEY remain "cute" even at seven years of age: "Daddy, why is the weather always the same for Boston as it is for Vicinity?" . . . That comes from listening to the radio.

WHICH REMINDS US: How long is Rudy Vallee going to permit an uninspired writer to make a fop and a sap and a sucker out of him, week after week—and at the very same time? . . . Why doesn't he just sing and lead a band, and leave the task of attempting to do fifth-rate Gilbert and Sullivan to the Broadway musical comedy writers? . . . And why doesn't John Barrymore switch to something sensible? . . . He is a better Hamlet than a Mike Sacks . . . Which, too, reminds us, that in the realm of burlesque—coast-to-coast, four theaters in Boston, and six in New York—the most important "trade" news in years is the reunion, at the Old Howard, of Mike Sacks, Fred Binder and Jack Rosen . . . In burlesque, billing of these comics on the same program is comparable to casting Eddie Cantor, Bob Hope and Bert Lahr on the same musical comedy stage.

MR. HOPE, BY THE WAY, SLUMPED for a time because he nearly was heckled into obliterating the raspy characters, Cobina and Brenda, from his program . . . But he came to his senses in time . . . Jerry Colonna, (a West End boy) is said to be marvelous in "Sis Hopkins" . . . While mentioning Vallee above, we should have interjected a personal plea to Bing Crosby . . . Here it is: Dear Bing, Please only sing.

SEEKS STAGE NAME

HOLLYWOOD, April 28 (AP)—Actress Gloria Wood says she doesn't want to trade on the name of her father, Director Sam Wood. So she's petitioned for the legal name of K. T. Stevens. Gloria, 20, has appeared on Broadway as Katherine Stevens.

Love And Marriage Makes Other Dates

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am a young man of 23, and as my girl friend lives a distance from my home, and my work is such that I can't get away as much as I'd like to, I see her only on weekends. Lately she has seemed to want to make other dates, and whenever I go there she is ready to go out with someone else. Of course, she asks my permission and, wishing to be generous, I have said yes.

When I have a little extra money, I take her out, but as I have to help at home, I don't have much.

UNHAPPY.

When a young man goes to see a girl for the week-end and she makes excuses to go out with someone else, the case doesn't look very hopeful. I'm a great believer in direct action, and you might ask this young lady if she cares enough for you to have you continue your visits to her, and if she's serious.

Belmont Police In New Duties

Thirteen officers of the Belmont police department assumed new duties today in a shakeup announced by Police Chief William G. Heyd, who said the changes are the result of the promotion of three men to lieutenants.

The three new lieutenants, a fourth lieutenant, two sergeants and seven patrolmen are affected by the shift.

Lt. Harry Carey and Lt. Joseph Diolette were ordered to alternate on the first and second half night desk shift, with Lt. William Fisher filling in days off and acting as "swing" man. Lt. Fred Sharkey goes from night duty to day duty at the station.

Sgt. John Walsh, in charge of the day desk, will take day radio patrol, while Sgt. Fred O'Brien goes from day to night radio patrol.

The seven patrolmen affected are all night officers whose beats are shifted.

Man in Brown Suit Who Liked B. C. Can Still Collect Bet

NEW ORLEANS, April 28 (AP)—This might be a little late:

If the stranger in the brown suit who bet $20 on Boston College against Tennessee in last New Year's Day Sugar Bowl game still wants to collect, Irwin Oldstein of the Five Hundred cocktail lounge says he is holding the money for him.

The bettors left the stakes with Oldstein on New Year's Eve, and he hasn't seen either of them since. Furthermore, he's still holding a bet on the Texas Aggies-Carnegie Tech game two years previous.

Fall From Horse Fatal to Patrolman

Patrolman Robert E. J. Donlan, 27, Centre st., Jamaica Plain, died today at the Boston City Hospital from injuries received when he was thrown from his horse during a canter in Franklin Park Saturday, his birthday.

The officer, a rookie appointed only a few months ago, received a fracture of the skull when the horse he was riding bolted and threw him against a tree.

Best Pitching May Be Behind Sox Big Five

EARL JOHNSON made a lot of friends in Boston last summer. Earl's the blond 6-2 southpaw with the infectious grin who came up from Rocky Mount on July 16 and proceeded to win six games for the Sox while losing only two. He was one of the few pitchers on the club who could start and finish a ball game.

EARL JOHNSON

Earl's a precocious youngster just turned 22. As a kid in his native Seattle, he used to beat Coast League clubs in exhibition games, and in his two years at St. Mary's he won 20 of the 21 games he pitched.

He has always been eager to learn, still is. While the Sox and Reds were playing exhibition games on their way North, Earl talked to Paul Derringer at every opportunity.

Paul is an acknowledged master of control. He was telling Earl how to gain it.

"When you're warming up," he said, "aim every ball at a specific target. Pick out a certain letter on your catcher's shirt, and try to hit it. Shoot your curve ball for the catcher's left knee.

"Never throw just for the sake of throwing. Aim for that particular spot, with every pitch. Nobody ever got control without working for it."

Earl follows that advice religiously. His control of his fast breaking curve ball is marvelous for one of his tender years.

Another Derringer gem:

"Don't let the batter see everything you've got. Save that little extra something for the pinch. When you're in trouble, that extra oomph will help relieve the pain."

Grover Cleveland Alexander's Advice

IT WAS reminiscent of the advice old Grover Cleveland Alexander was giving to a rookie:

"Once in every ball game, I try to get ahead of each hitter," Alex said. "When I do I put everything I have on the ball and blow it by his whiskers.

"I waste it deliberately, but I know I leave the batter with the feeling: 'Gee, I didn't know he was that fast.' So with that threat on his mind, I go to work on him.

"I never throw the ball that fast again because I have to sacrifice some measure of speed for control, but the batter doesn't know I won't throw it. Gives him something to think about."

Johnson is always interrogating older pitchers. Ted Williams has been doing the same thing about hitting since he was a kid. And Johnson will be as great in pitching as Ted is in hitting when he gets the chance to be.

The kid came up with a pitching masterpiece in Havana. After two weeks of idleness, he gave the world champion Reds only 4 hits, 1 run in six innings. He worked two other three-inning hitches against the Reds and did well.

He has worked twice in relief tricks since the season opened. He pitched the final two innings against Washington on opening day, held the Nats scoreless and was the winning pitcher.

In New York last Thursday he relieved Emerson Dickman in the sixth inning, and stemmed a Yanks rally. He forced Henrich to roll out to Doerr. He walked Joe DiMaggio on purpose to fill the bases, then whiffed the dangerous Keller. Earlier in the game, the same Keller had blasted a three-run homer off Dickman.

Before the game, one of the Yankees had asked: "Say, haven't you got a young left-hander with you by the name of Johnson? Used to give us a lot of trouble last year. What ever became of him?"

And since the Sox returned from their Philadelphia-Washington-New York outing, we have been bombarded with the same question:

"What's the matter with Johnson? Why isn't he starting games?"

Johnson Not on Starting Quintet

WE HAVE BEEN wondering the same thing. Johnson was the most consistent winner on the club last summer, and has been going great guns this spring.

It was something of a shock, consequently, when Joe Cronin announced Jack Wilson, Lefty Grove, Mike Ryba, Charlie Wagner and Emerson Dickman as his Big Five. Wilson had been given two starting assignments and twice had been chased from the box. Johnson had been called upon for relief tricks twice and had responded nobly.

Only last September, Lefty Gomez, who ought to know, called Johnson the best young southpaw in the American League.

Only last winter Cronin said he would stand or fall this year on his young pitchers. What's young about Grove, Wilson and Ryba?

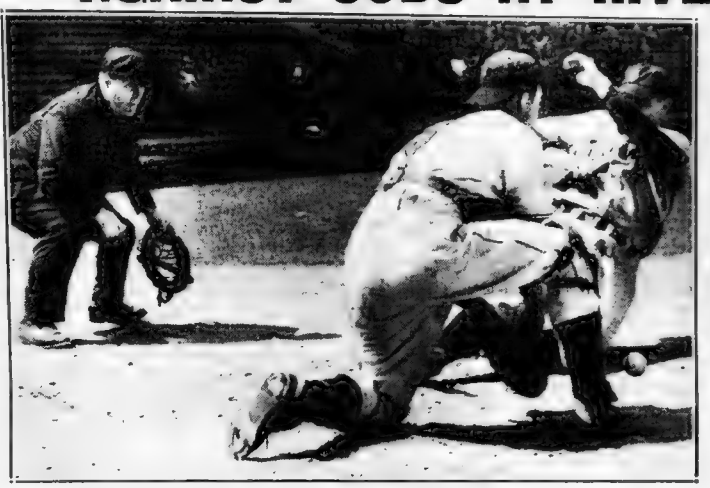
The situation is puzzling to the boys in the office. They read about Bill Rutland and Larry Powell pitching four and five-hitters for Louisville. They see unheralded newcomers like Dick Newsome and Bill Fleming come up with masterpieces, and they wonder why anybody with Johnson's 1940 record is on relief.

Boston hasn't had a pennant since 1918, and it wants one badly.

"The Red Sox would walk in if they had the pitching," one hears year in and year out.

The boys are just wondering if the Sox haven't got the pitching, somewhere behind, that Big Five.

BEES OPEN HOME STAND AGAINST CUBS AT HIVE



FAMINE ENDING—After 21 scoreless innings, the Bees again break into the run column. First Baseman Babe Dahlgren scores from third base, sliding into Catcher Tommy Livingston of the Phils. Milton Bill Stewart calls the play. Bees won, 8 to 3, in Philadelphia game. Note ball near Livingston's glove. Force of slide knocked ball out of his hands.

Boston gets a peek at mid-western talent for a 10-day period starting tomorrow when the Bees play host to the Cubs, Reds, Cardinals and Pirates in that order.

The rejuvenated Chicago Cubs, under the direction of Jimmy Wilson, make their bow tomorrow and remain at the Hive for three days. During this stay, locals will get their first peek at Lou "The Rad Russian" Novikoff and Eddie Waitkus, a Cartridge boy, who is getting a lot of action at first base.

Those Cubs are a much improved ball club this year, and the Bees will have to be right up there all the way to get a series edge. In fact, all four Western clubs are tough. The Reds got away to a red start by piling their first four games, but they have been hotter than a "six shooter" ever since. The Cards have stepped away to a much faster start than ever before while those unpredictable Pirates are apt to get hitting at the most unexpected times.

LOOKS BAD FOR BEES

All in all these coming 10 days may possibly mean grief for the Bees. In fact, the Stengeleers have been floundering around badly for the past week, but they finally straightened away yesterday and hammered the Phils, 8 to 3.

This win did the club worlds of good. Not only for the thumping they gave the Prothromen but the fact that Bill Posedel proved he is ready.

Sailor Bill, who led the Bees in victories two years ago with 15 and tied Errickson with a dozen wins last year has been sidelined for some time with a bad elbow. To come off the shelf and turn in the four hit masterpiece that he pitched yesterday means that the Bees have another starting pitcher.

For eight innings Posedel toyed with the Phils. He gave only two hits going into the ninth and both were picked up by Litwhiler—one was a bunt that he beat out.

In the first inning, Posedel walked Marty with two gone and Litwhiler beat out a bunt. It was the only time a man reached second until the final frame.

MARTY STARTS ATTACK

Going into the last of the ninth with an eight run lead, Marty singled with one gone and after Litwhiler flied to West, Posedel walked Etten. The Sailor then made his only bad pitch of the day to Warren who stroked a home run into the lower tier of the left field stands, scoring Marty and Etten ahead of him.

It meant nothing, though, for Nagel rolled out to end the game.

Of this performance, Bill steps into a starting role and will probably hurl the Thursday game against the Cubs.

And if Sailor gets the hitting support he got yesterday for the rest of the season he won't complain. The Bees came up with 14 hits, four of them doubles. Posedel and Cooney shared top honors with three hits apiece while Dahlgren and Majeski both connected for two safe blows.

The Bees tucked the game away in the second with four runs on a single, a double a sacrifice, a walk an error and on Miller getting hit by a pitched ball—a little of everything. The Bees filled the bases in the sixth twice, but only picked up one run when Majeski scored after Rowell had flied to Marty.

DAHLGREN DOUBLES

Vito Tamulis took over the hurling duties in the seventh and got by that inning without being scored upon. In the eighth, though, Cooney singled and scored on Rowell's double. In the ninth singles by Berres, Posedel and Cooney together with a Dahlgren double netted the final two runs.

Detroit First Stop For Ailing Red Sox

By HERB FINNEGAN

The over-traveled Red Sox will hit the rattlers again this evening, bound for the West, where they open a 10-game tour in Detroit tomorrow.

It's a good thing for the Sox that they will have had two full days of rest behind them when they hit Detroit. Rest was what they sorely needed.

They have been on the go continually since March 25, when they broke camp at Sarasota. They have been to Cuba, to Cincinnati, to Washington and whereabouts since that March date, most of them one-night stands, and they are tired.

They have had more than their share of bad breaks too.

Ted Williams has played only six innings all spring because of an injured right ankle; Bobby Doerr has been playing with an injured left thumb; Pete Fox is in Forest Hills Hospital recuperating from an operation to his jaw bone; Joe Cronin has missed the last two games because of a heavy cold; Stan Spence has been nobbling about on a sore knee.

The whole club is down fine, and the week-end rest is bound to benefit them.

PLAY 3 GAMES WITH TIGERS

A good thing, because they will face the severest of competition in the four cities they are visiting on the trip. They will play three games in Detroit, two in Cleveland, three in St. Louis and two in Chicago.

The Sox have won 7, lost four to date, a good record considering their lack of rest and injuries. But it must be remembered that they have met only one top flight club this spring, the Yanks, and they dropped both starts to them.

This trip, then, is of the make-or-break variety. By May 10, when the Sox returned here to take on the Yankees, they will know just how well equipped they are for the pennant struggle.

Detroit reputedly is below par, but Cleveland is strong, Chicago annoying, and the Browns no longer "lowly."

To combat this strength, Joe Cronin plans to return to shortstop after a four-day respite; also plans to rush Ted Williams into left field for the Detroit series.

Ted tried to play in Washington last week but was forced to retire after six innings. But Pete Fox is not available, and Stan Spence's stiff knee interferes with his play.

TED ON JOE'S TRAIL

Williams' ankle injury doesn't interfere with his batting, and as Detroit is the park nearest his heart, it is a good place for him to start his annual batting duel with Joe DiMaggio.

DiMaggio, the papers say, has made the batting, runs batted-in and home run titles his tri-partite objective this year, but Williams will not sit idly by and watch him waltz to those titles.

Master Ted gave him a fight for the batting title right down to the last week of the 1940 campaign, and can do it again.

He had only a few days of spring practice, has played in only one official game, but his eye is clear, his wrists like bands of steel, and he'll probably hit as well right now as he will at any time during the season.

Youth, it's wonderful.

Lefty Grove is due to go for the Sox tomorrow. Despite his seventh-inning two-hitter in Philadelphia on April 18, Grove did not get credit for the win, and still needs seven to reach his 300-victory objective.

SOX OPTION WOODY RICH TO LOUISVILLE

Woodrow Wilson Rich, Red Sox right-handed pitcher, was released on option today to Louisville of the American Ass'n. There, Rich will join his chum, Bill Butland, who was released by the Sox earlier in the season.

Rich stands 6-2, weighs 190 and is 24 years of age. Two years ago he reported to the Sox camp at Sarasota after winning 19 at Little Rock and was the spring sensation.

He continued his fine work in the North, winning four games during April and early May. But he came up with a sore arm one cold day late in May, and after scrubbing around for a couple of months he was sent to Louisville.

Last year, he was demoted to Scranton. He had arm trouble again there but late in the season he suddenly found himself, and helped Mickey Harris pitch the club to the Eastern League pennant. After the playoff, he reported to the Sox and looked like his early '39 self while defeating the A's.

This spring, in the South, he was the most effective of the Sox pitchers. He actually was knocking the bats out of the hands of the Sox in batting practice. He was the first pitcher on the club to go the route, doing that against a Cuban team in Havana.

He was shellacked merrily by the Bees in the first city game at National League Field, and again by the A's last Saturday at Fenway Park before Bill Fleming relieved him.

This is the last time the Sox can option him. If they don't keep him next spring, they will have to send him to another club.

Bartholemy of Eli Awarded Scholarship

NEW HAVEN, Ct., April 28 (AP)—Yale University announced today it had awarded the Mory's Ass'n scholarship to Alan E. Bartholemy of Portland, Ore., captain-elect of the football team and a member of the junior class.

The scholarship, established by the board of governors of Mory's, the Yale Eating Club, is awarded annually on a basis of "character, personality, scholarship, athletic ability and capacity for leadership."

REDS TACKLE DODGERS AS STRUGGLE OPENS BETWEEN EAST AND WEST IN PENNANT RACES

This is the week the East and the West meet for the first frantic showdown of the infant major league campaign and the two circuits cleared their decks for action over the week-end by elevating a pair of new leaders—the Cleveland Indians and St. Louis Cardinals, according to the Associated Press.

The intersectional strife was scheduled for a fitting start today at Brooklyn with the World Champion Cincinnati Reds colliding with the Dodgers as a sort of signal rocket for the full fireworks that will be set off tomorrow.

Both opponents are cruising at full speed after being left at the post. Since losing its first four games, Cincinnati has won seven of its last eight and has mopped up everybody in the West except St. Louis, which is a score that will have to be settled later.

The Reds completed their divisional dynamiting yesterday with a 3-2 triumph over the Pittsburgh Pirates as Bucky Walters bested Rip Sewell in a pitching duel. Each hurler gave six hits and each walked four batters. But Sewell weakened to let in the winning run on a wild pitch in the sixth.

DODGERS SPRINTING

The Dodgers, after dropping their first three games to the New York Giants, have captured 10 of their last 11 contests and bumped the Giants out of the National League lead with a 7-5 decision yesterday.

This was Hugh Casey's third straight victory, all at the expense of the Giants. He wasn't around at the finish, giving way to a pinch hitter in the sixth, but Lee Grissom filled in nicely with three hitless innings.

Cookie Lavagetto had a perfect day at the plate with four hits and Dolph Camilli clouted his sixth home run to lead a 14-blow offensive.

The Cardinals, who will invade the Giants' Polo Grounds tomorrow, nailed down their fifth triumph in six starts Sunday with an 8-5 conquest of the Chicago Cubs.

The St. Louis sluggers pounded four Chicago chuckers for 13 hits, including a triple and a double by John Mize, and Mort Cooper settled down to an effective eight-hit pitching performance after yielding a three-run homer to Bill Nicholson in the first inning.

TIGHT SQUEEZE

This success was enough to lift the Cardinals into first place yesterday, but the squeeze is so tight that Brooklyn can move into the lead if it wins today while the Redbirds are traveling.

In Sunday's other National League encounter the Bees snapped out of their losing streak with an 8 to 3 decision over the pitiful Phillies. Sailor Bill Posedel held the tailenders to three hits and had a shutout till Ben Warren homered with two on in the ninth. Posedel, who had had a sore arm, also led the Bees' own 14-hit offensive with four safeties.

SUNDRA HALTS OLD PALS

Cleveland gained the American League lead by nosing out the Detroit Tigers, 2 to 1, while the Washington Senators ambushed the New York Yankees, 6 to 3.

In the spectacular mound struggle at Cleveland, Schoolboy Rowe gave only five hits to six the Tigers collected off Bob Feller. But one of the hits off Rowe was a two-run homers by Jeff Heath in the seventh stanza. It was enough to give Feller his third triumph in four decisions.

Steve Sundra, who was sold to the Senators by the Yanks earlier this month, held his old teammates to five hits to get sweet revenge. Meanwhile Cecil Travis, returning to the Washington lineup after an injury, slapped out two doubles and a triple to lead a 12-hit attack.

The Chicago White Sox shaded the St. Louis Browns, 7-6, by getting 15 hits to the Brownies' 12. Bill Dietrich survived the full nine innings for his third straight win.

The Red Sox and Athletics were rained out.

STAR-DUST

By the Associated Press

Steve Sundra and Cecil Travis, Senators—Former's five-hit pitching and latter's triple and two doubles beat Yankees, 6-3.

Harry Lavagetto, Dodgers—Drove in three runs with four hits in perfect day at bat against Giants.

Jeff Heath, Indians—Two-run homer in eighth beat Tigers, 2-1.

Bill Posedel, Bees—Limited Phillies to four hits and made three of Boston's 14 safeties himself.

Bucky Walters, Reds—Steady six-hit hurling toppled Pirates.

Johnny Mize, Cardinals—Led 13-hit offensive against Cubs with triple and double.

Bill Dietrich, White Sox—Kept dozen hits by Browns scattered, retiring side with bases loaded in ninth, for third straight victory.

Newark Returns Pitcher to Kansas

NEWARK, N. J., April 28 (AP)—The Newark Bears of the International Baseball League announced today that Pitcher Rinaldo Ardizoia had been returned to Kansas City in the American Association, where his record last year was seven wins and two losses.

The transfer was part of a deal by which the Bears obtained Jack Lindell, another hurler, from the New York Yankees.

Porter's Cap Fast in Derby Workout

LOUISVILLE, Ky., April 27 (AP)—Porter's Cap, C. S. Howard's Kentucky Derby threat, stopped the clocks at Churchill Downs by romping the Derby distance of a mile and a quarter in 2:04 4-5.

In winning the Derby last year, Gallahadion stopped the same route in 2:05.

With Buddy Haas, who will ride him in the classic Saturday, just sitting in the saddle, Porter's Cap was timed at :23 4-5, :47 3-5, 1:12 3-5, :38 4-5, 1:51 4-5 and 2:04 4-5.

In a morning drill Hugh S. Nesbitt's chestnut gelding, Starter, became the first of the Derby eligibles to step the Derby journey. Starter's workout was recorded at :23 3-5, :48, 1:15 2-5, 1:41, 1:54 2-5 and 2:08.

COAST CREWS SUPERIOR IN 'KEEPSIE

NEW YORK, April 27 (AP)—Princeton and Columbia, each with two victories, head the eastern rowing "standings" so far this season, but neither looks to be the kind of a standout crew that can give Washington and California an argument at Poughkeepsie in June.

The two triumphs for this pair have been over Rutgers, which has just begun to emerge from the "pushover" class in college rowing, and a Navy varsity that admittedly is weaker and lighter than usual. Princeton's margins against both rivals were the bigger, but all four varsity races were close.

LIONS BEAT NAVY

Columbia beat Navy by only about two feet on the Harlem Saturday, gaining its margin in the last few strokes at a high beat after the Midshipmen twice had come from behind.

The week before Princeton had conquered Navy by approximately three-quarters of a length. There's no basis for comparison of times, for Columbia has been pushed along by the swift running tides of the Harlem river and Princeton has rowed only on "dead" water.

Rutgers managed to make both of them look pretty good last week by whipping Pennsylvania, a one-time eastern rowing power, in the Quakers' first race of the season. It was the first time in Rutgers rowing history that the Scarlet had beaten a "major" crew, but this year's Penn varsity hardly looks up to even the standards of the past few seasons.

Yale got off to a winning start Saturday, beating Syracuse in another indecisive race. The Elis won by a quarter length in a final spurt after the Green Syracuse eight, loaded up with sophomores, had led most of the way.

Second to Washington at Poughkeepsie last year, Cornell begins its campaign against Navy at Annapolis. Meanwhile the first of the traditionally important sprint races will be run off at Philadelphia and Cambridge. Columbia, Yale and Penn clash in the Blackwell Cup race on the Schuylkill and Harvard, Princeton and M. I. T. meet in the Compton Cup regatta on the Charles.

Eastern "small college" rowing, which already has begun an ambitious program, and the Mid-West's only two rowing colleges also figure on next week's slate. Springfield, first victim of the Dartmouth crew which triumphed over American International College last Saturday, encounters Trinity in the East's minor event. Wisconsin, which likely will take another shot at the Poughkeepsie regatta this year, opens its season against Marietta.

On the West Coast, the early part of the season is just about over. California, soundly whipped by Washington in their annual duel, showed last Friday that it has a better than fair crew by speeding to a six-lengths victory over U. C. L. A. in a 2000 meters race. Even that didn't win the Golden Bears a sure trip East to Poughkeepsie. That all depends upon how they shape up in the next month or so.

Greek Credits in U. S. Frozen by F. D. Order

WASHINGTON, April 28 (AP)—President Roosevelt issued an executive order today freezing Greek credits and cash in the United States immediately.

The action took cognizance of the conquest of Greece by Germany. It was designed to keep Greek credits or cash in this country from German hands.

LES MacMITCHELL RATED OUTSTANDING TRACK STAR

NEW YORK, April 27 (AP)—Leslie MacMitchell is a clean-limbed, square-shouldered lad of 20 with a bristling crew haircut. There is scant room for doubt that he also is the best miler and one of the best all-around runners in competition today or any day.

The New York U. junior, who learned to run in a city where few people even bother to walk, drove home both points as decisively as he drove his spikes into the Franklin Field cinder track during the two-day Penn relays at Philadelphia. For the two days of competition, his record showed:

A 4:13.6 mile and a 1:54.1 half-mile an hour later in anchoring the winning distance and sprint medley teams on Friday, and yesterday a 4:09.4 anchor mile for the winning four-mile team, with which he made up 42 yards on Wayne Tolliver of Indiana, and a 48.3 quarter for the one-mile team.

When you consider that this was only his second meet of the young outdoor season, that he is only 20 and a junior, with another year and more in which to benefit from the astute coaching of Emil Von Elling, you get a vague inkling of how far he still may go.

Major Neyland Called to Duty In Army May 26

WASHINGTON, April 28 (AP)—Maj. Robert R. Neyland, Jr., football coach at the University of Tennessee, was called to active duty today by the Army and made district engineer at Norfolk, Va.

He will take over his new assignment May 26 to serve one year.

The major retired Feb. 29, 1936, after 24 years of service and since that time has been at the University of Tennessee in Nashville.

Former Russian Count Becomes U. S. Citizen

Among 280 men and women admitted to American citizenship today in Federal district court was a former Russian count. He is Ivan N. Podgoursky of Fenway, in the Fenway, born in Otchakoff, Russia, Sept. 7, 1901. He entered the United States via Newport, Vt., on Aug. 2, 1932.

Judge Francis J. W. Ford administered the oath to the new citizens.

Northeastern, Rhode Island Nines Clash

Northeastern and Rhode Island stage their annual diamond battle tomorrow afternoon at Huntington Field, with the title-bound Huskies anxious to avenge the upset defeat suffered at Kingston two weeks ago. Coach Herb Gallagher has not yet decided on a pitching nomination, but he will have Fred Rice, Charlie Foster and Frank Coole all set to work.

The Huskies were riding high until they came a cropper at Kingston a week ago last Saturday. The Rams stole seven bases, dumped hits over the infield, and came up with all sorts of miraculous fielding plays to stifle Northeastern's heavy hitters.

The Rams were hot, particularly because they in turn wanted to avenge the double defeat they suffered last year at the hands of Northeastern. Those 1940 victories marked the first for the Huskies over the Rams since the days Gallagher himself was on the firing line.

The presence of the colorful Frank Keaney always provides excitement in itself. One of the most explosive of college coaches, Keaney has his team play wide-open in all sports. The results are never dull.

While the Huskies are concentrating on tomorrow's game, they also have an eye toward the week-end trip to Maine. On the itinerary are a Friday stop at Waterville for a game with Colby and a Saturday trek to Orono to play a return game with University of Maine.

N. E. RACE TRACKS MAY CLOSE IF WAR COMES

OWNERS OF New England race tracks today gave serious consideration to what course they shall take if war comes to America. Persons in high positions at some of the tracks fear racing would temporarily pass out with war, and they are making inquiries about the possibility of securing positions with the government.

CHARLES F. ADAMS

The announcement that there are 200 American warships patroling off the New England coast was additional proof for race track owners and horsemen that people in authority consider the war danger acute.

This writer also learned that the approaches to all vital harbors in New England are being mined so that in the event of war enemy submarines will not be able to slip into the harbors during the darkness and stillness of the night and sink American warships at anchor as was done at the British naval base in Scotland. Boston and Portsmouth, N. H., have large Navy Yards and these two ports will be given every possible safeguard. Bath, Me., and other harbors where shipbuilding flourishes are being specially guarded. The Fore River plant at Quincy and the Hingham Naval Arsenal are under heavy guard.

Charles F. Adams, president of Suffolk Downs, was among the first of the race track heads to recognize the danger of war and world unsettlement. This is why Suffolk Downs failed to redeem the last of its $1,500,000 bond issue.

"We have the cash to pay off the remainder of the bonds on Suffolk Downs," Adams told me, "but we do not wish to do so at this time. The world situation is such that we are anxious to hold on to as much cash as possible.

"If the United States enters the world war, we shall for a time try to continue racing under a curtailed program. This may result in a loss for the track, but we shall accept it."

President James E. Dooley of Narragansett Park has seen the war clouds gathering, and has recognized their dangers to racing. Narragansett Park, like Suffolk Downs, would not close down in the event this country became involved in the war. It would carry on as long as possible, but its board of directors realizes that fast moving events might make it expedient to suspend racing.

Even as far back as last Fall Lou Smith of Rockingham Park could see that racing might be obliged to suspend if the United States entered the war.

Mining of Harbors Is Wise Move

THE MINING OF New England's vital harbors is a wise move. During the World War this writer was at Monument Beach on the Cape when a German U-boat sank some small craft at the entrance to Buzzards Bay. The sinkings were not an effective war move, and were done more as a show on the part of the German Admiralty which wished to prove it could reach across the Atlantic. They caused a great deal of commotion and brought the war close to New England.

In the World War, the draft and voluntary enlistments soon made it necessary for sports promoters to curtail their operations. The same will be true but even on a larger scale if we should get into the present war.

The airplane and faster warships move war across oceans much more quickly than they did in 1917 and 1918. Some of the newer American battle planes have a cruising range just short of 8000 miles. They could fly from New York to Europe and back without the necessity of stopping.

The Army and the Navy have located stations along the entire New England Coast that are equipped with delicate instruments that can pick up a plane long before it can be seen. These stations, along with our Navy and planes, would be in the first line of defense if this country were to be attacked. The location of these coastal stations has been kept secret.

'We Are in War' Is Word From Washington

THE MAJOR SPORTS promoters have their listening posts in Washington as they wish to know how to govern their future actions. Sports promotions have become big business, and millions of dollars are invested in baseball, race tracks, boxing clubs, golf courses and in other athletic pastimes.

"I asked my Congressman, who is in the know at the Capital, as to whether there was danger of the United States getting into the war," said one New England sports promoter.

"'We are in the war already,' was the reply. 'We are doing everything possible for Britain short of sending men overseas.'"

Sports promoters fear that with the United States patroling the Atlantic 1000 miles from shore that this may be the final step towards war. If it is, they will be prepared to take what action it is necessary to protect their investments and at the same time serve the public.

I feel that in troubled times like these sports is one of the best safety valves for the American people. They would go on for a time despite war, but in the end they would have to suspend entirely or curtail their programs.

TALBERT WINS

ASHEVILLE, N. C., April 28 (INS)—Billy Talbert, Cincinnati, staged a major upset in the land of sky invitation tennis tournament by defeating Bobby Riggs in the men's singles championship in straight sets of 7—5, 6—4, 6—2.

PLENTY TO SPARE—Irish Ivy, fleet 2-year-old from the stable of Weston W. Adams, Boston sportsman, winning the Oak Hill Purse, third race at Gansett. J. Peres rode the winner. Maupeace, W. L. Taylor up, finished second and Chuckle, W. E. Snyder up, was third.

MARKET WISE'S WOOD VICTORY FAILS TO IMPRESS HORSEMEN

NEW YORK, April 28 (AP)—The latest "Cinderella" to gallop into the Kentucky Derby limelight wasn't getting much credit for the stunt.

Instead of boosting the stock of Lou Tufano's Market Wise, a rags-to-riches runner with a stout heart, the tendency on the part of the boys on the backside was to make excuses for some of the East's best known Derby Hopes, whom he whipped in the 17th running of the Wood Memorial at Jamaica.

Almost no one, except for Owner Tufano, a Jamaica (Long Island) contractor, who went into racing only last fall, could see him there or thereabouts at the finish of the "big heat" at Churchill Downs next Saturday.

In fact, there were turfmen around here who insisted if that's the best this section can offer, and if Robert Morris and Dispose, two who were not in the Wood, can't do it, then it'll be Porter's Cap and Our Boots in a breeze.

KING COLE WEAKENED

Only two of the eight Derby eligibles in the Wood's mile-and-a-sixteenth were sure of getting the ride to the Downs. These were the winner, a son of Broker's Tip, the 1933 Derby victor, and Ogden Phipps' handsome King Cole, who cut out all the pace but weakened to third at the end.

Trainer Jack Howard indicated Curious Coin, who chased Market Wise to a nose decision, would ship to Pimlico instead, to get ready for the Preakness the following Saturday. At the same time, Clarence Buxton just about made up his mind to declare Bern Stable's Master Henry out of the run for the roses because of his poor showing. He never made a move and finished last.

Maxie Hirsch, who already has Dispose in the lists, could not be reached for yes-or-no on whether he'd pair the son of Discovery up with Arnold Hanger's Harvard Square, who was fourth in the Wood.

Chief reasons for the poh-poohing of Market Wise's Wood win appeared to be that (1) he never had much class before, (2) wasn't any ball of fire with a 1:45 3-5 clocking in this race and (3) didn't get a true test of King Cole.

BROKER'S TIP BOUGHT CHEAP

The Broker's Tip colt, ridden by Don Meade—the same boy who brought his daddy home in the most sensational of all Derby finishes—was twice picked up for "peanuts" during his brief career.

Mrs. Isabel Dodge Sloan bid him in for $2300 at the Saratoga yearling sales two years ago, and after running him in $1500 selling races, sold him to Tufano for a mere $1000.

His time was three full seconds slower than the track record.

As for King Cole, before this outing, no one knew whether he could carry his special speed over a distance of ground. When he faded from the eighth pole home in the Wood, most folks were convinced he couldn't.

But the "Monday morning quarterbacks" were inclined to believe that it may have been a mistake to let him run himself out through the first three-quarters in a head-to-head hustle with the speed-horse Mettlesome, and that if he'd been held off for a time, he might have had something left for the end.

4 Games Scheduled For Maguire's Eagles

Coach Fred Maguire's Boston College nine, idle since its surprise victory over powerful Fordham on Patriots' Day, will play three games in four days this week—two of them with Boston University.

The Eagles, who showed definite signs of class in taking the Rams from Rose Hill over the hurdles, will play B. U. at Alumni Field Wednesday afternoon. Two days later the Maguiremen will tangle with the Terriers on the latter's Nickerson Field diamond. Saturday they play St. John's (Brooklyn) at Alumni Field.

Though the nine which flogged Fordham was — for the most part —a flashy, sound and impressive team, Coach Maguire hasn't put a final stamp of approval on the unit. The Eagle mentor has been experimenting during the past week and will continue the same procedure through the St. John's game.

There are half a dozen ball players on the squad who are still definitely in the fight for first team standing.

CONNOLLY GOING GREAT

One of this group is Harry "Mickey" Connolly, the triple threat tailback of the varsity football squad. The tow head from Norwalk, Ct., is a second sacker—and a mighty nifty one if his work around the keystone sack during the past week is any criterion.

Connolly joined the baseball squad after Easter. Previous to that the "Mick" had operated for two weeks with the spring practicing football squad. From the first day he worked with Coach Maguire's squad Connolly was an instant hit.

At the time of the Fordham game Mickey hadn't been out long enough to warrant using him against the Rams. And Coach Maguire had a pretty fair kind of country ball player in Walter Cassell, Dorchester sophomore operating at the second base.

Since that time however Connolly has made serious inroads on Walter's second base security. Connolly is a better fielder than his heavier and taller rival. Cassell, who as a freshman last year was the most consistent sticker on the yearling nine, is the better hitter.

CASSELL HEADS FOR GARDEN

Maguire has a problem to solve at second base. The Eagle coach has been working Cassell in the outfield and may ease Connolly into the lineup by placing Walter in the outfield.

When Freddy contemplates such a move he has an even more serious problem. The outfield he used against Fordham—Frank Davis, Bill Commane and Bob Jauron — was a topnotch combination. Besides covering acres of ground in the field each of the lads came up with a pair of base knocks in four trips to the plate.

So you can see the problem Menton Maguire has when he thinks about finding an opening in his lineup for one Harry "Mickey" Connolly—second baser par excellence. The problem, however, serves to keep a flock of Eagles on their toes.

Bees' Gardener Ill in Gotham

NEW YORK, April 28 — Max West remained at a local hotel here tonight suffering from a stomach ailment as the Boston Bees continued on to Boston after beating the Phils in Quaker town.

West was treated by a physician here and was ordered to bed. West was given permission to make the trip to the Hub tomorrow morning. Duffy Lewis, secretary of the club, left another member of the swarm here to accompany Maxie.

MARKSMEN SET FOR TOURNEY NEXT SUNDAY

By WALTER KILEY

The long-awaited championship finals of the William Randolph Hearst Citizens' Marksmanship Competition will bring New England's foremost rifle shooters to the 101st Infantry Armory next Sunday afternoon.

With but a few exceptions, the many teams which qualified during the long and intensely contested series of winter gallery matches have been named and the lists will be completely filled within another day.

All these sharpshooters will report with their .22 calibre rifles to Capt. Pete Lambert, chief range officer of the Hearst finals, at 1 o'clock Sunday afternoon. The draw for order of team firing positions will be immediately made and the championship firing will get underway at 1:30 o'clock.

There are eight firing points at the 101st Armory and the range is conceded to be one of the finest indoors in this part of the country. The lighting is good and target pulleys are available.

MAGUIRE HAS STAGE SET

Maj. Hugh J. Maguire, armorer, will have everything in readiness so that the competition should proceed with despatch.

Capt. Lambert plans on having the four-man teams fire at the one time, two full teams being on the firing points together. Each man will fire 20 shots offhand and 20 shots prone at 50 feet under N. R. A. conditions.

At this time it might me well to mention the fact that it will be impossible to accommodate spectators during the finals.

Limitations of space in or behind the range makes it of paramount importance that only the actual shooters in competition at the time be allowed in the range enclosure.

Among the rifle teams already definitely named as qualified for Sunday's event by virtue of having won the titles in their respective leagues are: Boston Edison Co., winner of the Civilian and Military Rifle League of Boston; the V'8s of Nantucket, winner of Quaise Rifle Club League; the Ames Rifle and Pistol Ass'n, Inc., of North Easton, winner of the Ballistics League.

N. H. TEAM ENTERED

The Klean-Kutt Rifle team of East Jaffrey, N. H., winner of the Bullets League; the East Warren, R. I., Rod and Gun Club, winner of the Firing Pins League; the Ashburnham Rifle Club, winner of the Gunners' League; the Sagamore Rifle Club, winner of the Cartridges League; the Brockton Rifle and Revolver Ass'n, winner of the Triggers League.

The Barre "A" team, winner of the Vermont Rifle Club League; teams A and P of the Piscataqua Rifle and Revolver Ass'n League of Portsmouth, N. H.; the Woodstock (Vt.) Rifle and Pistol Club of the Green Mountain League, and the Essex and Peterson's Motors teams of Burlington, Vt., which won the respective two divisions of the Champlain Rifle League.

Manlapig on Casey's List

The Boston Arena will take on the appearances of an Army encampment next Wednesday night, when Pvt. Steve Casey, U. S. Army, stationed at Ft. Constitution, Portsmouth, N. H., clashes with Pantaleon Manlapig, tan husky who holds the championship of the Philippine Islands.

Many of Steve's brothers in arms in the artillery unit plan to make the trip to Boston.

The Filipino will be slightly heavier than Steve, though not as tall, and he is equipped to give the soldier boy a tussle he won't forget in a hurry.

In the semi-final, Lou Plummer, known as the Iowa Thunderbolt, hopes to strike with devastating force at the person of Leo Numa, handsome blond star from the West Coast.

Shucco Seeks Clash With Joe Louis

Tony Shucco will put himself into line for a shot at Joe Louis if he punches out a convincing win over Iron Man Joe O'Gatty in one of the four 10-round feature bouts next Friday night at the Boston Garden.

O'Gatty recently fought Lou Nova, now the No. 1 challenger of the Bomber, to a draw and Shucco can leap into a prominent position among the title challengers by walloping O'Gatty, who is regarded as the toughest heavyweight the game has known since Johnny Risko, the "spoiler of champions," was in action.

Shucco is anxious to cash in on a crack at the heavyweight king. He thinks he could improve on the showing of Louis' recent versus McCoy, Burman, Simon, Musto and the rest. In fact Shucco feels he could go the full route and that his weaving, crouching style is the exact type to cause Louis his most severe headache since he took the crown.

This fight may feature the Goodwin A. C. card at the Garden Friday p. m. for the Brockton Fire Fund. Fifty per cent of the proceeds will be turned over to the fund to aid the families of victims in the recent Brockton theater disaster.

Other 10-rounders on the benefit program arranged by matchmaker Rip Valenti will be George Martin, Castle Square, vs. Honey Mellody, Charlestown; Coley Welch, N. E. middleweight champion, vs. John Henry Eskew, of Brockton; and Johnny Skhor, giant Boston-Baltimore heavyweight, vs. Bill Weinberg, Chelsea, who carries a k. o. wallop in each hand.

Lopez Speaking: "Advice From John E. Warner Is the Best Insurance Against Baldness"

BOSTON, April 26 (JW)—Vincent Lopez, nationally famous band leader and pianist, whose music has delighted millions over the air and in personal appearances, knows that a good head of hair is well worth keeping. Naturally, as have so many leaders in every field, he has John E. Warner, the leading hair and scalp specialist of today, to take care of this very important matter for him. John E. Warner's advanced scientific treatment is generally considered the best because it has consistently produced results for thousands of men. You too, if you are losing your hair, should consult this famous specialist. You can be sure of saving your hair if your case is accepted for treatment, but any case will be rejected if the applicant is bald or the hair is too far gone. There is never any charge or obligation for such a scalp examination and consultation. Fees for treatment are very moderate and paid as the treatments are taken The new enlarged offices of John E. Warner and Associates are conveniently located at 320 Little Building, corner of Boylston and Tremont Streets. Hours 10 A. M. to 8 P. M. daily. Saturday to 6 P. M. Phone Hub. 1705 or Hub. 1870. There is a separate department for women Examination and treatment are always given in strictest privacy

GOLF CLASSIC CARDED AT BROOKLINE MAY 14

The first annual "Big 8" invitation tourney, which will bring the eight top money winners of Freddie Corcoran's winter circuit to The Country Club, Wednesday, May 14, promises to be one of the greatest of all time golf events.

The contestants will be Sam Snead, Ben Hogan, Craig Wood, Lawson Little, Jimmy Demaret, Jug McSpaden, Byron Nelson and Craig Wood . . . They will play 36 holes of stroke competition for approximately one-third of the "gate."

Lawson Little

The balance will be turned over to the British War Relief . . . Between rounds there'll be a long driving contest and the field will be repaired after the morning round.

Chick Rutan, a former Wollaston caddy, is Ben Hogan's assistant at Hershey . . . Freddie Corcoran was home over the week-end but returned to New York last night . . . On Saturday, he scored a hollow victory over his brother John, whose playing was handicapped by a very painful back.

Ralph Guldahl, the former U. S. Open titleholder, is on his way to the Coast . . . He is cutting down his overhead by giving exhibitions at driving ranges en route . . . Big Ed Dudley has a $7500 contract with a famous distillery and may not sign up as pro at Denver, Col. . . .

The Goodall Round Robin Invitation has developed into a top-notch tournament in three short years . . . Three years ago, Slammin Sam Snead captured the first annual Goodall by "deucing" the second hole of a playoff with Gene Sarazen at Cincinnati and Harry Cooper topped the field the next year at Fresh Meadow, where Ben Hogan outstripped the boys a year ago.

SELECTED GOLF LIST

The field for the fourth annual Goodall, which will be played late next month at Fresh Meadows at Flushing, L. I., will be announced within a week or ten days . . . But, in the meantime, the outstanding pros are wondering, and some of them are worrying, if their names are on Elmer Ward's list . . . The pros deem it a great honor, now, to be invited to play in the Goodall Round Robin.

The Andover Country Club will hold the first 1941 M. G. A. open tournament on Friday and Saturday . . . Andover is not only a fine course but it is a real test of golf . . . John Shimkonis, the veteran pro, will be on hand to greet the visitors . . . In all probability, Ed Bishop and Emory P. Stratton, the best medal players in the state will take a shot at the Andover men.

Abe Mitchell, who was Burt Nichols' assistant at Belmont for years, is in the infirmary at Camp Edwards . . . He has bronchitis . . . With many of the older boys in the Army and the younger ones back in school, there'll be a shortage of caddies for the W. G. A. tournaments today and Thursday.

LEARY BACK AT SCITUATE

Frank McNamara has started his 29th year as pro at the Cohasset Golf Club . . . Jack Leary is back at Scituate and Dick Lincoln will be at Hatherly as soon as the season gets underway at Minot.

Just as soon as the opportunity presents itself Babe Dahlgren, the Bees' first baseman, will auto up to Toy Town Tavern and visit with Gene Mosher . . . Babe was made an honorary member of Toy Town Tavern for knocking a home run in San Antonio.

He's in for a real treat when he gets to Winchendon . . . Little Johnny Keefe is busier than ever this spring at the Brookline "Munie" . . . He's a very fine golf instructor and his lesson book is well filled.

After handling the four ball team for years, Joe Fay is well qualified as chairman of the golf committee at Woodland . . . According to Alex Bird, the Marshfield Country Club is cashing in on the fire.

Golfers killed two birds with one stone over the week-end . . . They visited the ruins and played the country club course, which is one of the best layouts in New England . . . Frank Wilson has his Charles River course in mid-season condition.

LACK BIG CADDIES

P. G. A. will stage a Met style amateur-pro at Wollaston . . . John J. Fitzgerald who has been at Mid-Pines, N. C., all winter will return to the Essex Country Club this week-end.

Dan Coleman, the caddy master at Charles River, acts like he's developing another ulcer over the bag toters' situation . . . He's been looking for big husky caddies but about all he's been able to unearth are small boys who don't look well trying to carry some of the wardrobe trunks the members insist upon taking out on the course.

THE THRILLING STORY OF A WOMAN WHO ESCAPED FROM HER PAST

PRESENTED BY MAXWELL HOUSE COFFEE EVERY MON. THROUGH FRI.

Feller Starts Signal Stealing Row in A. L.

NEW YORK, April 28 (AP)—That's quite a fuss Bob Feller started over "signal stealing" in the National League people are wondering why Coach Chuck Dressen of the Brooklyn Dodgers isn't accorded recognition, too, as a sign sleuth.

The Cardinals claimed he was trying to call Bob Bowman's pitches when Joe Medwick got beaned last year . . . However, the Dodgers have been getting hit on the head ever since Babe Herman started chasing fly balls.

Frank Frisch isn't the only manager who keeps scrapbooks; Joe McCarthy keeps one on his Yankees from day to day and then buys a souvenir volume from a youngster in his home town, Buffalo, every fall.

* * *

In the dugout at Brooklyn somebody asked Manager Casey Stengel of the Bees who was the smartest player he had ever seen . . . Before the wit of Glendale, Cal., could reply, a Boston newspaperman spat: "You don't have to consider anybody on this club, that's certain."

The business of playing winter ball in the Canal Zone, which received considerable attention this spring was begun a few years ago by Mike Ryba, the fabulous rookie of the Boston Red Sox, who then was with Rochester in the International League . . . Ryba wanted to go back this winter, but was refused permission.

The Cleveland Indians have barred wives from making trips with the club . . . due to the world political situation, the Giants are running up a green flag this year instead of a red one to show that the team has lost . . . Blue on the Polo Grounds' flag pole still means victory.

* * *

Brian Bell, the former sports writer who now is the Associated Press' Washington chief, rates an assist for keeping First Baseman George Archie with the Senators . . . When the club was about to give up on the redhead down South, Bell wrote a note to Manager Bucky Harris and advised him not to be too hasty because he had watched him become the most valuable player in the Pacific Coast League . . . Now Archie is one of the Senators' stars.

Club Wins Title Fall River Soccer

FALL RIVER, April 28 (AP)—The Fall River club of the American Soccer League's New England division won the the Eastern championship by defeating the Philadelphia Hosiery Local, 2 to 0, and gained the final round of the national amateur cup competition.

Fall River scored one goal in each half with Joe Rego, center forward, and Joe Chapiga, outside left, doing the honors.
